Spy Ring Case Mystery Man Balks Probers

Koral Won't Talk But Hebert Says He Signed Confession

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—A mystery witness billed as the man who could "break" the whole Red spy ring case refused to talk today, but a congressman declared the man had once confessed a part in Soviet espionage.

An investigator for the House Un-American Activities Committee testified the witness had served as a courier for an alleged Soviet agent and had dealt with United States government officials in Washington.

The witness, 51-year-old, London-born Alexander Koral, stuck to his policy of silence on the ground that to answer queries flung at him by the committee might incriminate him.

He refused time after time to answer questions on whether he was or ever had been a Communist, whether he knew Elizabeth T. Bentley who first told in the open the story of a network of Red pipelines running into the government's most secret places, or had dealings with persons named as links in the Red chain.

When Rep. Hebert (D-La) asked Koral whether he had "signed a statement confessing membership in an espionage ring related to the Soviet government," Koral stood on his constitutional rights not to answer.

Signed Confession Hebert Says

"If I told you that I know you signed a confession, what would you say about that?" Hebert asked then.

"I would not say anything about it," the witness replied.

"Well I know from good authority that you did sign a confession," Hebert said, closing the exchange.

Throughout his appearance on the stand Koral relied on the Constitution's provision that a witness may not be required to give answers that would tend to incriminate or degrade him.

Koral gave a Brooklyn, N. Y., address—290 Empire Boulevard. He said that except for a 21-month layoff he had been employed by the New York Board of Education since 1922. But that was about all he would say.

He would not tell whether he knew an individual called "Frank". Miss Bentley, who describes herself as a former Communist and former courier for a spy network, has named "Frank" as one of her Soviet contacts.

Neither would Koral answer a question as to whether "Frank" had asked him to "become a courier for certain work he (Frank) was performing."

Likewise, he declined to say whether he knew Gaia Obakimian. Koral's lawyer denounced the suggestion of a connection with that person as unfair.

Robert E. Stripling, committee investigator, said Obakimian had been taken into custody as a Soviet agent, but had been allowed to return to Russia.

Shortly before Koral went on the stand the Justice Department said

No Confirmation Reds Fortifying Zonal Frontier

Soviets Reported Massing Troops

BERLIN, Aug. 9 (AP) — Russian army commanders were reported today to be concentrating strong forces, building defenses and sending weapons, including rocket guns, to the border between the Soviet occupation zone and Western Germany.

The reports came from the British-licensed newspaper Telegraf and from a German journalist who said he fled Russian arrest. The Telegraf quoted Germans who said they were pressed into service by the Russians.

At Hof, along the American-Russian zonal frontier, German and United States border officials said, however, they had no indication the Russians were erecting weapon points there.

Difficult To Assess Meaning

It was difficult to assess the meaning of the reports. Troop activity could be normal maneuvers. American officials said tightening of frontier controls has been going on for months to cut down the flow of illegal German border crossers.

Commenting on the Telegraf's account, an American Military Government official in Berlin said: "We can't say precisely what it means because the Russians always have liked to put up such physical barriers."

The German journalist, Alfred Bienert, 29, evaded border police in a weekend flight with his wife. He said in Hamburg that strong Soviet forces were concentrated 30 miles east of the British zone and contended border control points had been strengthened with both German and Red Army guards.

Bienert also brought fresh reports of a critical food shortage in the Soviet zone. He said only about three ounces of the official 10-ounce monthly fat ration is being delivered and that sugar and cheese are being substituted for some missing items.

City Government Marks Time

As the Berlin blockade passed its 45th day, Dr. Ferdinand Friedensburg, Christian Democrat deputy mayor of Berlin, said the city government was marking time to "avoid hasty actions that might prejudice the negotiations in Moscow."

An American public safety official in Berlin said a protest was planned against seizure by the Russian sector police of eight policemen from the western sector forces, most of them on "trumped up charges of theft." The arrests occurred since the city's police force split into two rival factions two weeks ago.

The wife of one of two Americans arrested on the United States-Soviet zonal border four days ago said the Russians have promised to release the two at noon tomorrow.

Crash Crews Are Alerted But Model Plane Lands OK

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9 (AP)—A small, odd-looking airplane zoomed out of the skies over the Navy's Mustin Field today and dipped for a wrong-way landing while frantic radio challenges tried to stop it.

Crash crews were alerted.

Then gaping ground crews took a second look.

It was a model airplane and it made a perfect downwind landing—the kind all pilots are instructed not to try.

U. S. Wrecks Arms Talks, USSR Says

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 9 (AP) — Russia declared today the United States and Britain are wrecking United Nations talks on arms reductions.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jakob A. Malik made his charge before the United Nations Commission for Conventional Armaments in a scathing attack on the two Western Powers.

He was particularly bitter about the United States which he said was steadily increasing its armed forces while talking about slashing armaments. This, Malik said, was undermining international confidence.

Malik declared the United States and Britain already had wrecked atomic control talks, discussions on creation of a world police force and efforts to agree on peace treaties for Germany and Japan.

Now, he said, they are saying that arms cannot be reduced until the peace treaties are signed, atomic controls are established and the United Nations military force is set up.

Dmitri Z. Manuilsky, foreign minister of the Soviet Ukraine, joined in the attack. He said Russia had demobilized class after class of her troops, while the United States went ahead building up her strength.

While the United States delegation is telling the arms commission it favors arms slashes, Manuilsky said, military leaders in the halls of Congress are insisting that there be no limitation on arms and that the atom bomb remain exclusively an American weapon.

Manuilsky said the whole world knows there is not a single nation threatening the United States, but that it is the United States which is threatening other countries.

United States Delegate Frederick H. Osborn did not reply to the attack. British Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan, however, said Britain had learned a lesson about disarming without security.

U. S. Introduces Plans For Danube Agreement

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Aug. 9. (AP)—With little hope of success, the United States today introduced its major requirements for a new international pact on control of Danube River shipping.

They represented, as a whole, the American price for any agreement with Eastern Europe's Communist bloc which would open the Danube to unrestricted traffic from Germany to the Black Sea.

The United States' list of musts was presented in the form of amendments to a Soviet draft plan for a Danube convention which would give the Communist states exclusive control over the waterway.

Britain and France filed several amendments along parallel lines.

Arabs Still Undecided

CAIRO, Aug. 9 (AP) — An Arab League official said today the Arab nations had not yet made a decision regarding an Israeli bid for peace talks.

Abel Moneim Mustafa Bey, head of the Arab League's political departmena added, however, that an indication of the probable Arab reply could be found in the fact that since 1939 the Arabs have refused to have any conference or other direct contact with Zionists.

Truman "Armed" To Curb Inflation, Republicans Say

GOP Jumps In Ahead Of Predicted Blast

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—Republicans jumped in ahead of a predicted White House blast at Congress today with the argument that the extra session gave President Truman all he needs to curb inflation.

They added that the price problem may soon solve itself anyway.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, set forth these contentions in a statement and a news conference. He said:

1. War and administration policies of the last 14 years are the real cause of inflation; the tight controls Mr. Truman asked would "tie down the safety valve" while the furnace is being stoked.

2. When the President called Congress together he already had enough powers to put a rein on inflation but the lawmakers gave him more.

Situation Not Critical

3. While the present economic situation is "serious" there is nothing in it "likely to produce an extreme inflation or a depression;" he doesn't even see now any need for new Congress action on the subject at the new session in January.

4. Prices already show signs of leveling out and "by the time we get back we may be trying to do something about deflation."

The argument revolves around the consumer credit controls and increased bank reserve requirements which were all Congress voted out of the list of anti-inflation measures Mr. Truman requested. The President wanted selective price and wage controls and rationing powers, among other things.

Associates predicted freely today that Mr. Truman will sign the bill and at the same time unburden his mind publicly on what he thinks are its shortcomings.

The White House was silent on plans for the President's next attack on the Congress he has called one of the worst in history.

Truman Has Housing Bill

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross referred reporters to Mr. Truman's "known attitude" on the issues and suggested they draw their own conclusions on what he will do.

The Housing bill, Ross said, has reached the President and will go through the usual routine of submission to interested departments for comment. The bob-tailed anti-inflation measure is expected at the White House shortly.

There was nothing at the White House to indicate what the President will decide about the urging of some of his advisers that he carry his complaints against the Republican-dominated Congress to the nation in a broadcast.

A sharp step-up in the tempo of campaign planning was indicated, however, in the disclosure that the President's bullet-proof railroad car is being checked over for the expected long swings over the country.

Government Increases Interest Rate On Its Short-Term Bonds As "Anti-Inflationary" Measure

Hoped-For Result Of Boost Is Dampei On Credit Expansion

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—The government, already preparing to clamp a 15-month limit on easy-payment credit, today boosted the interest rate on short-term government bonds "as a further anti-inflationary measure."

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder announced the interest boost, long-rumored in banking circles. Treasury certificates which have carried 1⅛ per cent will, in the next offering, be posted at 1¼ per cent and other securities rates will rise accordingly.

The hoped-for result is a damper on credit expansion. This is because private interest rates usually follow the government pattern; if so, it will cost more to borrow money and to float bond issues.

In theory, at least, there will be less spending of borrowed money and hence the upward pressure on prices will diminish.

Long-Term Rates Unchanged

Secretary Snyder emphasized, however, that no change will be made in the government's policy of holding down the interest rate on its long term bonds.

But the higher rates announced will affect more than $10,500,000,000 of government borrowing within the next few weeks. Securities in that amount are falling due on September 15 and October 1, and will be replaced with offerings at the improved interest rate.

The Treasury announcement was made after Sen. Taft, of Ohio, Republican leader in Congress, sharply criticized the administration for failure to use the "traditional methods of preventing inflation" with powers already at hand.

The Federal Reserve Board, Taft said, could force an increase in the rate of short-term bonds and raise its rediscount rate.

"It has been discouraged from doing so by the attitude of the Treasury," Taft went on. "We cannot hope to prevent inflation with an artificially low interest rate."

15-Month Credit Limit Seen

Meanwhile Federal Reserve officials predicted that the wartime 15-month limit on installment buying by consumers will be restored, at least temporarily, when President Truman signs the GOP anti-inflation bill passed last week.

One-third down payments probably will be required for automobiles, refrigerators, and household appliances generally. Twenty per cent down will be necessary for furniture, pianos and rugs, if the previous formula of credit control is followed.

Items costing less than $50 or more than $2,00 will be free of control. The $2,000 top limit may be shoved up, however, because the cost of automobiles has risen well beyond that figure in many cases.

Charge accounts at department stores and other shops will not be affected by the restored controls; neither will single payment loans nor government-insured loans for home repair and modernization. Otherwise all installment credit will be regulated, with certain exceptions like funeral and medical expenses.

Loses 51 Pounds During 169-Day Hiccuping Siege

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 9 —(AP)—One hundred sixty-nine days of continuous hiccuping have worn Pauline Lucas down from 129 pounds to 78.

But the dark-haired, 31-year-old clerk is still hopeful someone, somewhere, will offer a cure for the wracking hiccups that beset her waking and sleeping.

Physicians at Greene County Memorial Hospital tried medicinals and anaesthesia after Miss Lucas exhausted the home remedies.

The hiccups started February 23. At times Miss Lucas hiccupped 75 times a minute. On "slow" days, the hiccups are reduced to 10 to 15 a minute.

Greek Guerrillas Fight With Backs To Frontier

ATHENS, Aug. 9. (AP)—Markos Vafiades' Communist guerrillas fought today with their backs to the Albanian border as Greek army units drove deeper into the Gramos Mountains, front dispatches said.

(A guerrilla broadcast conceded the rebels were making withdrawals but said these were "in order and in accordance with the plan outlined." The broadcast was reported by the Soviet news agency Tass, in a Belgrade dispatch).

Greek army units were reported to have made new gains north of the Sarandoporos River, at the southwestern end of the front. There Greek troops attack strong guerrillas positions at Zegma and Bouketski.

Univis Offer Accepted

DAYTON, O., Aug. 9 (AP)—The CIO-United Electrical Workers' Local 768 voted tonight to accept a proposal of the Univis Lens Company ending a three-month-old strife-torn strike against the firm.

Romania May Vot On Joining USSR

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Aug. 9—(AP)—Romanian refugee sources reported today that Romania will decide in a plebiscite August 23 whether to become a part of the Soviet Union.

There was no means of confirming the reports here. However, there have been rumors for some time that such a plebiscite was contemplated and that Romania largely has been cut off from outside communications.

The refugees said four divisions of Russian troops have virtually surrounded Bucharest and have strengthened garrisons in other cities. In the event the plebiscite favors annexation to Russia, the informants said, the Romanian Parliament would be dissolved and delegates to Moscow would be named instead.

Romania has an area of approximately 91,000 square miles and a population of more than 16,000,000. The Balkan country is one of the so-called people's republics of the Communist bloc.

The last monarch, youthful King Mihai, abdicated December 30, 1947, and left the country. More than two months later Mihai told a news conference in London that his abdication had been forced and he would not be bound by it. Without mentioning Russia by name Mihai said Romania was being ruled by a government "installed and maintained in power by a foreign country."

Met Opera Association To Meet With Unions

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera Association agreed today to meet with heads of 12 unions to try to work out a plan to descind cancellation of the 1948-49 opera season.

The appeal for a meeting was made by the union officials in a letter to George A. Sloan, opera board chairman, after a session of the AFL American Guild of Musical Artists.

Hyman R. Faine, executive secretary of the guild, said a letter had been written to Sloan asking a meeting of union representatives and the opera board to examine the "vital problem of the Metropolitan's 1948-49 season."

Urges Absentee Ballot

BALTIMORE, Aug. 9 (AP)—Delegate Albert L. Sklar (D-4th Balto) today suggested revival of the absentee ballot for Maryland servicemen.

Western Envoys, Molotov Confer For Three Hours

Views Of Moscow Believed Presented

MOSCOW, Aug. 9—(AP)—American, British and French diplomats conferred for three hours tonight with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. They were believed to have heard Russian views on proposals for negotiating East-West differences on Germany and perhaps all of Europe.

United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, British special envoy Frank Roberts and French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau left the Kremlin at 7:54 p. m. (11:54 a. m. EST).

All three appeared in good spirits. As was the case after the previous conferences here, the western envoys had nothing to divulge beyond the fact that they had seen Molotov.

Subsequently Smith, Roberts and Chataigneau met at the British Embassy, just across the Moscow River from the Kremlin, for a conference among themselves. Advisory staffs of all three missions were at the Embassy awaiting their arrival.

The British Embassy meeting was believed concerned with the informative telegrams the envoys will send their home governments concerning their talks with Molotov. Previously the envoys' post-Kremlin sessions were held at the United States Embassy.

An informed source described tonight's meeting with Molotov as one of the most important held thus far in the negotiations which have been in progress here for more than a week.

As in earlier talks Smith went to the Kremlin alone while Roberts and Chataigneau took translators. Smith conferred with Roberts for more than an hour before going to the Kremlin.

The three western envoys had met with Molotov Friday evening and a week ago had talked with both Molotov and Prime Minister Stalin.

Top Diplomatic Level Reached By Red Inquiry

Cool Reception Given Soviet Ambassador's Demand For Samarin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP) — The Red spy ring investigation leaped to the top diplomatic level today with a formal Russian demand for custody of a Soviet teacher who told his story to the FBI and is wanted for congressional questioning.

Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin delivered the demand to the State Department and got a rather chilly reception. It was said at the department that he was advised his story could not be accepted without question and that this country would decide what to do after investigation.

Along with his demand Panyushkin made a complaint that American "governmental organs" permit anti-Soviet organizations to operate in this country.

He said that violates commitments made between the USSR and the United States at the time the Soviet Union was reorganized diplomatically. Those agreements provide that neither country shall permit activities directed against the other.

Not In Custody, FBI Says

Panyushkin referred specifically to the Tolstoy Foundation, anti-Bolshevik group which has figured in the case of the teacher named in today's note, and even more prominently in the case of another Russian teacher. Soviet officials want to send them both back home.

In a formal note to the State Department, Panyushkin declared that the two Soviet teachers involved had been "kidnapped" by the Tolstoy Foundaiton. He called it a "criminal organization" existing in "direct violation of American-Russian diplomatic obligations.

The man Panyushkin demanded to have turned over to Soviet authorities is Michael Ivanovitch Samarin, mathematics teacher in the school formerly operated in New York for children of members of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations.

Just how he could be turned over to the Russians — if at all — was not immediately clear. The FBI, in saying he had come voluntarily to its New York office for an interview, emphasized that he was not held in custody though it said it was sure he could be found if needed.

Tonight the New York Times said it had learned that Samarin "would emerge from his hiding place with his family" tomorrow.

"By arrangement," the paper continued, "he is to be served with a subpoena from the House Un-American Activities Committee at 11 a. m."

The FBI would not say what Samarin told its agents in the interview, but the New York Times quoted the man today as saying he did not want to go back to Russia and was asking the protection of the American government and public opinion. The story said he spoke out against the Soviet "party, police and governmental machinery."

The Times said Samarin also expressed the opinion that the second teacher, also from the New York school, held similar views. The second teacher is Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina whom the Rus-

Rumored Russians May Reopen Zonal Railroad

BERLIN, Aug. 9. (AP)—An unconfirmed report circulated in Berlin tonight that the Russians have ordered German rail officials to stand by for possible reopening of the railway between the western zones and blockaded Berlin.

W. T. Babcock, United States deputy commander in Berlin, said he had heard the story from a usually "fairly accurate" German source.

Aviatrix Who Plans World Flight Is Wed

SANTA PAULA, Calif., Aug. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Dianna Converse Cyrus, who plans a round-the-world solo speed flight the end of this month, was married here today to Robert Bixby, operator of the air freight service for which she flies.

The 25-year-old aviatrix said she has postponed takeoff time on her globe-girdling flight until the last week in August. She said test flights had shown that her converted Mosquito bomber needs additional fuel tanks and minor repairs before it will be ready.

After a reception at her parents ranch, the bride and groom were to fly to Los Angeles. There, with Dianna at the controls, the pair planned to make a regularly scheduled freight flight to Dallas, Tex.

The flier's first husband was a fighter pilot killed in action in the war.

Housewives' Meat Boycott Beginning To Have Effect

[By The Associated Press]

A housewives' campaign to bring down meat prices reached from coast to coast Monday. Reports from as far east as Syracuse, N. Y., and as far west as Portland, Ore., indicated the plan was having some effect in scattered localities.

Meat retailers in Texas, where a butcher shop boycott began Monday, said results of the women's non-buying campaign were indecisive. But in Portland, Ore., bids on the livestock market were around $1 lower than last week and packers blamed the housewives' boycott.

In Syracuse, two housewives picked up the idea started in Texas and by late Monday said they had enlisted 100 women in a campaign for a meatless week beginning next Monday (August 16).

Another price protest was noted in Madison, Wis., where members of the Associated Grocers, independent food market operators, said they would cease running advertisements for meat in local newspapers to "make the packers aware of the situation and force a lowering of prices."

In Texas, a few Dallas grovers reported sharply decreased sales after the boycott went into effect, but others said sales were normal.

In Louisville, Ky., varied reports also came in. Some stores reported sales were down, but others, including chain stores, said they hadn't noticed a decrease. One dealer said some shoppers laid in unusually heavy supplies last week "in anticipation of the boycott."

A spot check of markets in Salem, O., showed meat buying was down considerably as a result of the wives' telephone campaign. Cincinnati housewives plan to start a phone campaign Tuesday asking consumers to buy no meat for 10 days and limited amounts thereafter until prices come down.

Ex-President Denies He's Organizing Panama Revolt

PANAMA, Panama, Aug. 9 (AP) — President Enrique Adolfo Jimenez said tonight he had received an assurance from President Jose Figueres at Costa Rica that the Costa Rican government would not permit any subversive activities aimed at the Panamanian government.

His announcement followed reports by high government sources in Panama that former President Arnulfo Arias, now in Costa Rica, was organizing an armed invasion of Panama from the neighboring state.

(In San Jose, capital of Costa Rica, Arias denied he was planning a revolt and said: "If such trouble develops, it will come from within Panama and not from any outside source." He added that the people of Panama, "living under a dictatorial regime, will demand their rights, acquired at the elections."

(The Costa Rican government also denied the reports in a formal statement which said Arias was offered asylum as a political exile. The government said it was "fully determined to prevent in its territory any subversive activities against friendly governments and cannot accept even the insinuation that we might be ready to help Dr Arias with money and weapons.")

Jimenez said he received the assurance in a letter from Otilio Ulate Blanco, president-elect of Costa Rica, who current is a guest of Panama.

Eight sources in the Panamanian government said a force of "foreign mercenaries is poised to invade the country along the border zone at Puerto Armuelles," a Panamanian town on the Pacific Ocean.

Arias, unsuccessful opposition candidate in the last Panama election, has the assistance of the Costa Rican general staff, the scurces said. They warned that an invasion would "create a grave international conflict."

Reports from Puerto Armuelles said a large number of Arias' followers have crossed into Costa Rica in the last few days, using banana plantation trails.

Then gaping ground crews took a second look.

It was a model airplane and it made a perfect downwind landing—the kind all pilots are instructed not to try.

U. S. Wrecks Arms Talks, USSR Says

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 9 (AP) — Russia declared today the United States and Britain are wrecking United Nations talks on arms reductions.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jakob A. Malik made his charge before the United Nations Commission for Conventional Armaments in a scathing attack on the two Western Powers.

He was particularly bitter about the United States which he said was steadily increasing its armed forces while talking about slashing armaments. This, Malik said, was undermining international confidence.

Malik declared the United States and Britain already had wrecked atomic control talks, discussions on creation of a world police force and efforts to agree on peace treaties for Germany and Japan.

Now, he said, they are saying that arms cannot be reduced until the peace treaties are signed, atomic controls are established and the United Nations military force is set up.

Dmitri Z. Manuilsky, foreign minister of the Soviet Ukraine, joined in the attack. He said Russia had demobilized class after class of her troops, while the United States went ahead building up her strength.

While the United States delegation is telling the arms commission it favors arms slashes, Manuilsky said, military leaders in the halls of Congress are insisting that there be no limitation on arms and that the atom bomb remain exclusively an American weapon.

Manuilsky said the whole world knows there is not a single nation threatening the United States, but that it is the United States which is threatening other countries.

United States Delegate Frederick H. Osborn did not reply to the attack. British Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan, however, said Britain had learned a lesson about disarming without security.

U. S. Introduces Plans For Danube Agreement

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Aug. 9. (AP)—With little hope of success, the United States today introduced its major requirements for a new international pact on control of Danube River shipping.

They represented, as a whole, the American price for any agreement with Eastern Europe's Communist bloc which would open the Danube to unrestricted traffic from Germany to the Black Sea.

The United States' list of musts was presented in the form of amendments to a Soviet draft plan for a Danube convention which would give the Communist states exclusive control over the waterway.

Arabs Still Undecided

CAIRO, Aug. 9 (AP) — An Arab League official said today the Arab nations had not yet made a decision regarding an Israeli bid for peace talks.

Abel Moneim Mustafa Bey, head of the Arab League's political departmena added, however, that an indication of the probable Arab reply could be found in the fact that since 1939 the Arabs have refused to have any conference or other direct contact with Zionists.

Truman "Armed" To Curb Inflation, Republicans Say

GOP Jumps In Ahead Of Predicted Blast

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—Republicans jumped in ahead of a predicted White House blast at Congress today with the argument that the extra session gave President Truman all he needs to curb inflation.

They added that the price problem may soon solve itself anyway.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, set forth these contentions in a statement and a news conference. He said:

1. War and administration policies of the last 14 years are the real cause of inflation; the tight controls Mr. Truman asked would "tie down the safety valve" while the furnace is being stoked.

2. When the President called Congress together he already had enough powers to put a rein on inflation but the lawmakers gave him more.

Situation Not Critical

3. While the present economic situation is "serious" there is nothing in it "likely to produce an extreme inflation or a depression;" he doesn't even see now any need for new Congress action on the subject at the new session in January.

4. Prices already show signs of leveling out and "by the time we get back we may be trying to do something about deflation."

The argument revolves around the consumer credit controls and increased bank reserve requirements which were all Congress voted out of the list of anti-inflation measures Mr. Truman requested. The President wanted selective price and wage controls and rationing powers, among other things.

Associates predicted freely today that Mr. Truman will sign the bill and at the same time unburden his mind publicly on what he thinks are its shortcomings.

The White House was silent on plans for the President's next attack on the Congress he has called one of the worst in history.

Truman Has Housing Bill

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross referred reporters to Mr. Truman's "known attitude" on the issues and suggested they draw their own conclusions on what he will do.

The Housing bill, Ross said, has reached the President and will go through the usual routine of submission to interested departments for comment. The bob-tailed anti-inflation measure is expected at the White House shortly.

There was nothing at the White House to indicate what the President will decide about the urging of some of his advisers that he carry his complaints against the Republican-dominated Congress to the nation in a broadcast.

A sharp step-up in the tempo of campaign planning was indicated, however, in the disclosure that the President's bullet-proof railroad car is being checked over for the expected long swings over the country.

Government Increases Interest Rate On Its Short-Term Bonds As "Anti-Inflationary" Measure

Hoped-For Result Of Boost Is Damped On Credit Expansion

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—The government, already preparing to clamp a 15-month limit on easy-payment credit, today boosted the interest rate on short-term government bonds "as a further anti-inflationary measure."

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder announced the interest boost, long-rumored in banking circles. Treasury certificates which have carried 1⅛ per cent will, in the next offering, be posted at 1¼ per cent and other securities rates will rise accordingly.

The hoped-for result is a damper on credit expansion. This is because private interest rates usually follow the government pattern; if so, it will cost more to borrow money and to float bond issues.

In theory, at least, there will be less spending of borrowed money and hence the upward pressure on prices will diminish.

Long-Term Rates Unchanged

Secretary Snyder emphasized, however, that no change will be made in the government's policy of holding down the interest rate on its long term bonds.

But the higher rates announced will affect more than $10,500,000,000 of government borrowing within the next few weeks. Securities in that amount are falling due on September 15 and October 1, and will be replaced with offerings at the improved interest rate.

The Treasury announcement was made after Sen. Taft, of Ohio, Republican leader in Congress, sharply criticized the administration for failure to use the "traditional methods of preventing inflation" with powers already at hand.

The Federal Reserve Board, Taft said, could force an increase in the rate of short-term bonds and raise its rediscount rate.

"It has been discouraged from doing so by the attitude of the Treasury," Taft went on. "We cannot hope to prevent inflation with an artificially low interest rate."

15-Month Credit Limit Seen

Meanwhile Federal Reserve officials predicted that the wartime 15-month limit on installment buying by consumers will be restored, at least temporarily, when President Truman signs the GOP anti-inflation bill passed last week.

One-third down payments probably will be required for automobiles, refrigerators, and household appliances generally. Twenty per cent down will be necessary for furniture, pianos and rugs, if the previous formula of credit control is followed.

Items costing less than $50 or more than $2,00 will be free of control. The $2,000 top limit may be shoved up, however, because the cost of automobiles has risen well beyond that figure in many cases.

Charge accounts at department stores and other shops will not be affected by the restored controls; neither will single payment loans nor government-insured loans for home repair and modernization. Otherwise all installment credit will be regulated, with certain exceptions like funeral and medical expenses.

Loses 51 Pounds During 169-Day Hiccuping Siege

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 9 —(AP)—One hundred sixty-nine days of continuous hiccuping have worn Pauline Lucas down from 129 pounds to 78.

But the dark-haired, 31-year-old clerk is still hopeful someone, somewhere, will offer a cure for the wracking hiccups that beset her waking and sleeping.

Physicians at Greene County Memorial Hospital tried medicinals and anaesthesia after Miss Lucas exhausted the home remedies.

The hiccups started February 23. At times Miss Lucas hiccupped 75 times a minute. On "slow" days, the hiccups are reduced to 10 to 15 a minute.

Views Of Moscow Believed Presented

MOSCOW, Aug. 9—(AP)—American, British and French diplomats conferred for three hours tonight with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. They were believed to have heard Russian views on proposals for negotiating East-West differences on Germany and perhaps all of Europe.

United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, British special envoy Frank Roberts and French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau left the Kremlin at 7:54 p. m. (11:54 a. m. EST).

All three appeared in good spirits. As was the case after the previous conferences here, the western envoys had nothing to divulge beyond the fact that they had seen Molotov.

Subsequently Smith, Roberts and Chataigneau met at the British Embassy, just across the Moscow River from the Kremlin, for a conference among themselves. Advisory staffs of all three missions were at the Embassy awaiting their arrival.

The British Embassy meeting was believed concerned with the informative telegrams the envoys will send their home governments concerning their talks with Molotov. Previously the envoys' post-Kremlin sessions were held at the United States Embassy.

An informed source described tonight's meeting with Molotov as one of the most important held thus far in the negotiations which have been in progress here for more than a week.

As in earlier talks Smith went to the Kremlin alone while Roberts and Chataigneau took translators. Smith conferred with Roberts for more than an hour before going to the Kremlin.

The three western envoys had met with Molotov Friday evening and a week ago had talked with both Molotov and Prime Minister Stalin.

Romania May Vote On Joining USSR

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Aug. 9—(AP)—Romanian refugee sources reported today that Romania will decide in a plebiscite August 23 whether to become a part of the Soviet Union.

There was no means of confirming the reports here. However, there have been rumors for some time that such a plebiscite was contemplated and that Romania largely has been cut off from outside communications.

The refugees said four divisions of Russian troops have virtually surrounded Bucharest and have strengthened garrisons in other cities. In the event the plebiscite favors annexation to Russia, the informants said, the Romanian Parliament would be dissolved and delegates to Moscow would be named instead.

Romania has an area of approximately 91,000 square miles and a population of more than 16,000,000. The Balkan country is one of the so-called people's republics of the Communist bloc.

The last monarch, youthful King Mihai, abdicated December 30, 1947, and left the country. More than two months later Mihai told a news conference in London that his abdication had been forced and he would not be bound by it. Without mentioning Russia by name Mihai said Romania was being ruled by a government "installed and maintained in power by a foreign country."

Greek Guerrillas Fight With Backs To Frontier

ATHENS, Aug. 9. (AP)—Markos Vafiades' Communist guerrillas fought today with their backs to the Albanian border as Greek army units drove deeper into the Grammos Mountains, front dispatches said.

(A guerrilla broadcast conceded the rebels were making withdrawals but said these were "in order and in accordance with the plan outlined." The broadcast was reported by the Soviet news agency Tass, in a Belgrade dispatch).

Greek army units were reported to have made new gains north of the Sarandoporos River, at the southwestern end of the front. There Greek troops attack strong guerrillas positions at Zegma and Bouketski.

Met Opera Association To Meet With Unions

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera Association agreed today to meet with heads of 12 unions to try to work out a plan to descind cancellation of the 1948-49 opera season.

The appeal for a meeting was made by the union officials in a letter to George A. Sloan, opera board chairman, after a session of the AFL American Guild of Musical Artists.

Hyman R. Faine, executive secretary of the guild, said a letter had been written to Sloan asking a meeting of union representatives and the opera board to examine the "vital problem of the Metropolitan's 1948-49 season."

Top Diplomatic Level Reached By Red Inquiry

Cool Reception Given Soviet Ambassador's Demand For Samarin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP) — The Red spy ring investigation leaped to the top diplomatic level today with a formal Russian demand for custody of a Soviet teacher who told his story to the FBI and is wanted for congressional questioning.

Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin delivered the demand to the State Department and got a rather chilly reception. It was said at the department that he was advised his story could not be accepted without question and that this country would decide what to do after investigation.

Along with his demand Panyushkin made a complaint that American "governmental organs" permit anti-Soviet organizations to operate in this country.

He said that violates commitments made between the USSR and the United States at the time the Soviet Union was reorganized diplomatically. Those agreements provide that neither country shall permit activities directed against the other.

Not In Custody, FBI Says

Panyushkin referred specifically to the Tolstoy Foundation, anti-Bolshevik group which has figured in the case of the teacher named in today's note, and even more prominently in the case of another Russian teacher. Soviet officials want to send them both back home.

In a formal note to the State Department, Panyushkin declared that the two Soviet teachers involved had been "kidnapped" by the Tolstoy Foundaiton. He called it a "criminal organization" existing in "direct violation of American-Russian diplomatic obligations.

The man Panyushkin demanded to have turned over to Soviet authorities is Michael Ivanovitch Samarin, mathematics teacher in the school formerly operated in New York for children of members of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations.

Just how he could be turned over to the Russians — if at all — was not immediately clear. The FBI, in saying he had come voluntarily to its New York office for an interview, emphasized that he was not held in custody though it said it was sure he could be found if needed.

Tonight the New York Times said it had learned that Samarin "would emerge from his hiding place with his family" tomorrow.

"By arrangement," the paper continued, "he is to be served with a subpoena from the House Un-American Activities Committee at 11 a. m."

The FBI would not say what Samarin told its agents in the interview, but the New York Times quoted the man today as saying he did not want to go back to Russia and was asking the protection of the American government and public opinion. The story said he spoke out against the Soviet "party, police and governmental machinery."

The Times said Samarin also expressed the opinion that the second teacher, also from the New York school, held similar views. The second teacher is Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina whom the Rus-

Rumored Russians May Reopen Zonal Railroad

BERLIN, Aug. 9. (AP)—An unconfirmed report circulated in Berlin tonight that the Russians have ordered German rail officials to stand by for possible reopening of the railway between the western zones and blockaded Berlin.

W. T. Babcock, United States deputy commander in Berlin, said he had heard the story from a usually "fairly accurate" German source.

Aviatrix Who Plans World Flight Is Wed

SANTA PAULA, Calif., Aug. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Dianna Converse Cyrus, who plans a round-the-world solo speed flight the end of this month, was married here today to Robert Bixby, operator of the air freight service for which she flies.

The 25-year-old aviatrix said she has postponed takeoff time on her globe-girdling flight until the last week in August. She said test flights had shown that her converted Mosquito bomber needs additional fuel tanks and minor repairs before it will be ready.

After a reception at her parents ranch, the bride and groom were to fly to Los Angeles. There, with Dianna at the controls, the pair planned to make a regularly scheduled freight flight to Dallas, Tex.

The flier's first husband was a fighter pilot killed in action in the war.

Housewives' Meat Boycott Beginning To Have Effect

(By The Associated Press)

A housewives' campaign to bring down meat prices reached from coast to coast Monday. Reports from as far east as Syracuse, N. Y., and as far west as Portland, Ore., indicated the plan was having some effect in scattered localities.

Meat retailers in Texas, where a butcher shop boycott began Monday, said results of the women's non-buying campaign were indecisive. But in Portland, Ore., bids on the livestock market were around $1 lower than last week and packers blamed the housewives' boycott.

In Syracuse, two housewives picked up the idea started in Texas and by late Monday said they had enlisted 100 women in a campaign for a meatless week beginning next Monday (August 16).

Another price protest was noted in Madison, Wis., where members of the Associated Grocers, independent food market operators, said they would cease running advertisements for meat in local newspapers to "make the packers aware of the situation and force a lowering of prices."

In Texas, a few Dallas grovers reported sharply decreased sales after the boycott went into effect, but others said sales were normal.

In Louisville, Ky., varied reports also came in. Some stores reported sales were down, but others, including chain stores, said they hadn't noticed a decrease. One dealer said some shoppers laid in unusually heavy supplies last week "in anticipation of the boycott."

A spot check of markets in Salem, O., showed meat buying was down considerably as a result of the wives' telephone campaign. Cincinnati housewives plan to start a phone campaign Tuesday asking consumers to buy no meat for 10 days and limited amounts thereafter until prices come down.

Ex-President Denies He's Organizing Panama Revolt

PANAMA, Panama, Aug. 9 (AP) — President Enrique Adolfo Jimenez said tonight he had received an assurance from President Jose Figueres at Costa Rica that the Costa Rican government would not permit any subversive activities aimed at the Panamanian government.

His announcement followed reports by high government sources in Panama that former President Arnulfo Arias, now in Costa Rica, was organizing an armed invasion of Panama from the neighboring state.

(In San Jose, capital of Costa Rica, Arias denied he was planning a revolt and said: "If such trouble develops, it will come from within Panama and not from any outside source." He added that the people of Panama, "living under a dictatorial regime, will demand their rights, acquired at the elections."

(The Costa Rican government also denied the reports in a formal statement which said Arias was offered asylum as a political exile. The government said it was "fully determined to prevent in its territory any subversive activities against friendly governments and cannot accept even the insinuation that we might be ready to help Dr Arias with money and weapons.")

Jimenez said he received the assurance in a letter from Otilio Ulate Blanco, president-elect of Costa Rica, who current is a guest of Panama.

Eight sources in the Panamanian government said a force of "foreign mercenaries is poised to invade the country along the border zone at Puerto Armuelles," a Panamanian town on the Pacific Ocean.

Arias, unsuccessful opposition candidate in the last Panama election, has the assistance of the Costa Rican general staff, the scurces said. They warned that an invasion would "create a grave international conflict."

Reports from Puerto Armuelles said a large number of Arias' followers have crossed into Costa Rica in the last few days, using banana plantation trails.

Money Experts May Decide Today On Md. Tax Cut

BALTIMORE, Aug. 9 (AP) — Three of the state's top money experts will meet here tomorrow to start some figuring that may bring reduced taxes for Marylanders.

One of their aims is to cut state income taxes.

The conferees — Comptroller James J. Lacy, Treasurer Hooper S. Miles, and Walter N. Kirkman, the budget director — made up the State Board of Revenue Estimates. Their job is to determine how much revenue the state is apt to take in during a given fiscal period.

Ordinarily they would begin thinking around this time about the two-year budget period which starts on July 1, 1949. That is so the General Assembly which meets in January could have their estimates to go on in adopting the biennial budget.

This time, however, they will give some attention to the fiscal year which started July 1 and continues until next June 30.

The reason for this is that they turned out to be something like $9,000,000 too conservative on their estimates for the 1947-48 fiscal year which ended six weeks ago and the state has a $20,000,000 surplus on its hands.

Gov. Lane wants to know how they feel about their figures for the current fiscal year. Would it be possible to reduce some taxes and still have enough money for the state's obligations?

The Governor indicated it might be possible to reduce income taxes. He said it could be done by increasing the exemptions so the benefit would fall more generously on those in the lower income brackets.

No Delivery "Deadline"

Panyushkin, answering questions through an interpreter at a news conference after filing his note with the State Department, said he had given Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett no "deadline" for delivery of Samarin.

He said he was unable to answer a question whether he will seek prosecution of anybody in connection with Mrs. Kosenkina's case and whether the woman will be allowed to testify.

The Ambassador said upon leaving, it was reported at the State Department, that Samarin had been wounded in the head during the war and that under the pressure of present events, he was in a highly nervous state and wouldn't be responsible for statements that he made.

Consul General Lomakin in New York had accused the Tolstoy Foundation people of "kidnaping" the woman and had implied that Samarin was held against his will in New Jersey.

He had said, however, that Mrs. Kosenkina must "take a rest" before she can talk to FBI men and had said "absolutely not" when asked if a congressional committee subpoena could be served on her in the consulate.

Rep. Mundt (R-SD), who has been acting chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee in its spy inquiry for the past week until Chairman Thomas (R-NJ) returned today, announced that the committee wants to question Samarin. He had talked of serving a subpoena on Mrs. Kosenkina in the consulate but gave up that project after talking to State Department officials about the international implications.

he had testified "at length" before a New York grand jury which recently indicted a dozen Communist leaders. None of the testimony was disclosed.

Koral was followed on the stand by Louis Russell, committee investigator who said that in 1939 "Frank" heard that Koral needed money to pay medical costs for his son.

"Koral subsequently became a courier for Frank and made 12 contacts for him," Russell, a former Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, testified.

Under the name of "Al," Russell went on, Koral came to Washington on at least two occasions and contacted Nathan Gregory Silvermaster, one of two former government officials Miss Bentley named as heading rings which supplied secrets that she carried back to Red agents in New York.

The second named by Miss Bentley as a Washington ring leader—Victor Perlo—was today's lead-off witness.

Except for an assertion in a written statement that he was a loyal American and that the charges against him were "inventions of irresponsible sensation seekers," Perlo made about as unproductive a witness as Koral.

Tribute To Key

Donaldson And Lane Call National Anthem's Words 'Message Of Hope'

FREDERICK, Md., Aug. 9. (AP)—The words of the National Anthem written by Francis Scott Key are more than a song, they are a "message of hope" and a "guide to principles for which true Americans stand."

That's the way they were described today by Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson and Gov. Lane, of Maryland, at ceremonies at the grave of the author of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

The grave ceremony climaxed a day in which this ancestral home of Key devoted itself entirely to paying him memorial tribute.

It was a double-barreled memoriam, marking the 50th anniversary of erection of a monument over Key's grave and issuance of a commemorative postage stamp.

"The words written by Key are more than a national anthem," Gov. Lane said. "They are a guide to principles for which true Americans stand. It could be a guide for other peoples also.

"It is fortunate that we Marylanders can look back to other Marylanders who pointed the right way of life for us. It is our obligation to carry the mantle so that it can be shifted unsoiled to those who come after us."

Postmaster Donaldson spoke in the same vein in honoring "one of Maryland's great sons, above all a patriot."

An album of the first issue stamps was presented to Miss Elizabeth Key Blunt, Washington, great great granddaughter of the author, on behalf of America's school children. The children throughout the land contributed pennies for the monument in 1890.

A brisk sale of the stamps, which will be offered the general public tomorrow, was held all day.

Playmate Accidentally Shoots Youth To Death

ROCKVILLE, Md., Aug. 9 (AP)—Ten-year-old Robert Dodson, of nearby Montrose, was accidentally shot to death today when he walked into the line of fire of a playmate's rifle.

Montgomery County police said the playmate, Robert Ertter, 14, was so shocked that he was unable to give any details of the accident.

According to police, the two boys were attempting to correct the sights of a .22 caliber rifle belonging to Rudolph Ertter, father of the playmate. They were firing at a target attached to a garage. Apparently, police said, Robert was struck as he walked up to examine the target. The bullet entered the back of his head.

Man at work . . . FOR YOU!

Although you may seldom see them—the people who wear the white coats at Celanese—every Celanese employee profits directly from the work they carry on. They are the research men and women in the laboratories and at the plants. Their job is to improve Celanese products and to develop more efficient methods, processes and machines.

The results they achieve benefit everyone who has a job at Celanese and everyone who buys a Celanese* product. They are one of the important reasons for such accomplishments as these:

Prices of Celanese products—in spite of much higher costs—have increased relatively little. Actually, the price of Celanese 150 denier cellulose acetate yarn today is about 18% lower than it sold for in 1932.

Yet, since 1932, average hourly wage rates in Celanese plants have approximately tripled. And since 1939, costs of many raw materials have approximately doubled.

Such results wouldn't be possible, if it weren't for the part played by research in providing the know-how and the improved equipment to produce more, at less cost.

Research and Development Laboratories

Celanese Corporation of America maintains at Summit, New Jersey, the Celanese Central Research Laboratory, which is considered to be one of the finest industrial laboratories in the country. Here basic research with respect to present and future products in the fields of chemical fibers, yarns and fabrics, and plastics is carried on. The Central Laboratory coordinates the continuous applied research programs of the development laboratories and pilot plants located at several of the manufacturing units.

At Clarkwood, Texas, is located the company's Petroleum Chemicals Research and Development Laboratory. Here, advanced research in petroleum chemistry is carried on, and new products are developed through processes worked out in pilot plant operation.

The importance of research to the growth and success of the company may be measured by the fact that Celanese invested almost three million dollars for research in 1947. More than two million was spent the previous year, and the cumulative expenditure for research since 1925 amounts to more than seventeen million dollars. It is an investment that everyone benefits from—employees and the public alike. To employees, it means greater job security and more opportunities for advancement; to the consumer, it promises improved products at reasonable prices.

You've probably noticed, at some time or other, how one thoughtless person can tie up two full parking spaces.

The same thing applies to a telephone party line. A good party-line neighbor is careful not to tie up the line. He tries to avoid making a number of calls one right after the other, giving others a chance to use the line.

If you share a party line, please keep these few suggestions in mind:

1. Whenever possible, allow an interval between calls.
2. Always answer the telephone as promptly as you can.
3. Please don't interrupt when the line is in use, except in a real emergency.
4. Be sure to replace the receiver carefully after every call.

By sharing the line, you'll help yourself and others to better telephone service.

Money Experts May Decide Today On Md. Tax Cut

BALTIMORE, Aug. 9 (AP) — Three of the state's top money experts will meet here tomorrow to start some figuring that may bring reduced taxes for Marylanders.

One of their aims is to cut state income taxes.

The conferees — Comptroller James J. Lacy, Treasurer Hooper S. Miles, and Walter N. Kirkman, the budget director — made up the State Board of Revenue Estimates. Their job is to determine how much revenue the state is apt to take in during a given fiscal period.

Ordinarily they would begin thinking around this time about the two-year budget period which starts on July 1, 1949. That is so the General Assembly which meets in January could have their estimates to go on in adopting the biennial budget.

This time, however, they will give some attention to the fiscal year which started July 1 and continues until next June 30.

The reason for this is that they turned out to be something like $9,000,000 too conservative on their estimates for the 1947-48 fiscal year which ended six weeks ago and the state has a $20,000,000 surplus on its hands.

Gov. Lane wants to know how they feel about their figures for the current fiscal year. Would it be possible to reduce some taxes and still have enough money for the state's obligations?

The Governor indicated it might be possible to reduce income taxes. He said it could be done by increasing the exemptions so the benefit would fall more generously on those in the lower income brackets.

74 B-29s In England

LAKENHEATH, England, Aug. 9 (AP)—Seven United States Superfortresses landed here tonight, bringing to 74 the total of B-29 bombers in England. Another 14 are due in the next few days for joint training with the Royal Air Force.

No Delivery "Deadline"

Panyushkin, answering questions through an interpreter at a news conference after filing his note with the State Department, said he had given Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett no "deadline" for delivery of Samarin.

He said he was unable to answer a question whether he will seek prosecution of anybody in connection with Mrs. Kosenkina's case and whether the woman will be allowed to testify.

The Ambassador said upon leaving, it was reported at the State Department, that Samarin had been wounded in the head during the war and that under the pressure of present events, he was in a highly nervous state and wouldn't be responsible for statements that he made.

Consul General Lomakin in New York had accused the Tolstoy Foundation people of "kidnaping" the woman and had implied that Samarin was held against his will in New Jersey.

He had said, however, that Mrs. Kosenkina must "take a rest" before she can talk to FBI men and had said "absolutely not" when asked if a congressional committee subpoena could be served on her in the consulate.

Rep. Mundt (R-SD), who has been acting chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee in its spy inquiry for the past week until Chairman Thomas (R-NJ) returned today, announced that the committee wants to question Samarin. He had talked of serving a subpoena on Mrs. Kosenkina in the consulate but gave up that project after talking to State Department officials about the international implications.

Spy Ring Case

he had testified "at length" before a New York grand jury which recently indicted a dozen Communist leaders. None of the testimony was disclosed.

Koral was followed on the stand by Louis Russell, committee investigator who said that in 1939 "Frank" heard that Koral needed money to pay medical costs for his son.

"Koral subsequently became a courier for Frank and made 12 contacts for him," Russell, a former Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, testified.

Under the name of "Al," Russell went on, Koral came to Washington on at least two occasions and contacted Nathan Gregory Silvermaster, one of two former government officials Miss Bentley named as heading rings which supplied secrets that she carried back to Red agents in New York.

The second named by Miss Bentley as a Washington ring leader—Victor Perlo—was today's lead-off witness.

Except for an assertion in a written statement that he was a loyal American and that the charges against him were "inventions of irresponsible sensation seekers," Perlo made about as unproductive a witness as Koral.

Tones Will Make Film Despite Divorce Suit

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Aug. 9 (AP) — Franchot Tone's platinum blonde wife, the former Jean Wallace, Chicago, sued him for divorce today.

But in spite of this they'll leave next month for France where they will play opposite each other in the movie "The Man in the Eiffel Tower." The movie will be made by Tone's company, Cornell Pictures, and Miss Wallace was loaned for the part by her studio, Twentieth Century-Fox.

Mrs. Tone, 25, accused her 43-year-old husband of mental cruelty.

Donaldson And Lane Call National Anthem's Words 'Message Of Hope'

FREDERICK, Md., Aug. 9. (AP)—The words of the National Anthem written by Francis Scott Key are more than a song, they are a "message of hope" and a "guide to principles for which true Americans stand."

That's the way they were described today by Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson and Gov. Lane, of Maryland, at ceremonies at the grave of the author of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

The grave ceremony climaxed a day in which this ancestral home of Key devoted itself entirely to paying him memorial tribute.

It was a double-barreled memoriam, marking the 50th anniversary of erection of a monument over Key's grave and issuance of a commemorative postage stamp.

"The words written by Key are more than a national anthem," Gov. Lane said. "They are a guide to principles for which true Americans stand. It could be a guide for other peoples also.

"It is fortunate that we Marylanders can look back to other Marylanders who pointed the right way of life for us. It is our obligation to carry the mantle so that it can be shifted unsoiled to those who come after us."

Postmaster Donaldson spoke in the same vein in honoring "one of Maryland's great sons, above all a patriot."

An album of the first issue stamps was presented to Miss Elizabeth Key Blunt, Washington, great great granddaughter of the author, on behalf of America's school children. The children throughout the land contributed pennies for the monument in 1890.

A brisk sale of the stamps, which will be offered the general public tomorrow, was held all day.

Playmate Accidentally Shoots Youth To Death

ROCKVILLE, Md., Aug. 9 (AP)—Ten-year-old Robert Dodson, of nearby Montrose, was accidentally shot to death today when he walked into the line of fire of a playmate's rifle.

Montgomery County police said the playmate, Robert Ertter, 14, was so shocked that he was unable to give any details of the accident.

According to police, the two boys were attempting to correct the sights of a .22 caliber rifle belonging to Rudolph Ertter, father of the playmate. They were firing at a target attached to a garage. Apparently, police said, Robert was struck as he walked up to examine the target. The bullet entered the back of his head.

Man at work... FOR YOU!

Although you may seldom see them—the people who wear the white coats at Celanese—every Celanese employee profits directly from the work they carry on. They are the research men and women in the laboratories and at the plants. Their job is to improve Celanese products and to develop more efficient methods, processes and machines.

The results they achieve benefit everyone who has a job at Celanese and everyone who buys a Celanese* product. They are one of the important reasons for such accomplishments as these:

Prices of Celanese products—in spite of much higher costs—have increased relatively little. Actually, the price of Celanese 150 denier cellulose acetate yarn today is about 18% lower than it sold for in 1932.

Yet, since 1932, average hourly wage rates in Celanese plants have approximately tripled. And since 1939, costs of many raw materials have approximately doubled.

Such results wouldn't be possible, if it weren't for the part played by research in providing the know-how and the improved equipment to produce more, at less cost.

Research and Development Laboratories

Celanese Corporation of America maintains at Summit, New Jersey, the Celanese Central Research Laboratory, which is considered to be one of the finest industrial laboratories in the country. Here basic research with respect to present and future products in the fields of chemical fibers, yarns and fabrics, and plastics is carried on. The Central Laboratory coordinates the continuous applied research programs of the development laboratories and pilot plants located at several of the manufacturing units.

At Clarkwood, Texas, is located the company's Petroleum Chemicals Research and Development Laboratory. Here, advanced research in petroleum chemistry is carried on, and new products are developed through processes worked out in pilot plant operation.

The importance of research to the growth and success of the company may be measured by the fact that Celanese invested almost three million dollars for research in 1947. More than two million was spent the previous year, and the cumulative expenditure for research since 1925 amounts to more than seventeen million dollars. It is an investment that everyone benefits from—employees and the public alike. To employees, it means greater job security and more opportunities for advancement; to the consumer, it promises improved products at reasonable prices.

Letters To New Lad Should Be Prompt, Newsy, Not Serious

By NANCY MOTTRAM

(Q) "Dear Nancy: My problem is writing letters to a fellow I don't know very well. About a year ago, he moved to a different state. He was visiting here recently, and he dated me. He promised to write when he returned home, but though I decided I like him, I know that he didn't feel the same way bout me. I don't want him to guess my feelings from my letters, but they're the only means I have of trying to interest him. How can I do this?"

Nancy Mottram

(A) Your best bet is a very chatty, newsy and friendly letter, without ever mentioning how you feel or trying to ferret out his private thoughts about you. Tell him what you're doing, what's new with his old crowd, and now and then, after you've exchanged letters for a while, you might mention that you wish he'd been here for such and such a party or some doings of the fellows and girls he knows. Wait until you hear from him, then answer him within a day or two every time. You'll be able to interpret his attitude from his letters, and you can base your replies on that.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: This is something that affects a lot of teenagers, and I hope you can give me an idea of what to do. I want to get rid of the habit of biting my fingernails. I hate the way they look, and I've tried to stop several times, but then, I'd forget and start all over again. Can you suggest any sure way to stop doing it and succeed."

(A) This battle is going to take will power. You can demolish your nails in a matter of minutes, but it takes more than two or three weeks to get them back to the point where you don't feel like hiding them from sight. There are preparations that are used to prevent babies from sucking their thumbs, but since you're way out of that age bracket, pride in the care of your hands ought to be enough. Get a mental picture of how pretty your hands could look and think of it every time you begin to ruin your fingernails for the next month. With a definite goal, you'll be a little less forgetful.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: What should I do after a group of friends, for fun, told a boy I know only slightly that I had a crush on him? It wasn't true, and now, instead of speaking causually, as he'd always done, this boy goes out of his way to meet me, talk to me, and has been a nuisance on the phone lately. I don't want to go out with him, as I'm interested in someone else, and yet, I don't want to tell him that he's the victim of a joke."

(A) a joke isn't funny when it's likely to cause real embarressment and the knowledge that everyone finds your feelings amusing. He might have been fond of you for some time, and been too shy to let you know it before. The easiest way to clear up this situation is to mention that "someone else's" name frequently in your conversations with him. That, plus your refusal to ever date him, may give him a hint as to how things really stand.

If you have a problem at school or at home, write Miss Mottram for her help.

Abandonment of Teachers College Not To Be Pressed

The Maryland Commission on Higher Education has decided that it will not pursue further its recommendation for the abandonment of Frostburg State Teachers College. That goes for Princess Anne College, too.

The statement issued by William L. Marbury, chairman of the commission over the weekend, makes it quite clear that its decision was prompted by the realization that it deems it useless to press the recommendation in the face of political opposition and influence.

Mr. Marbury's continued belief that the Frostburg Teachers College should be abandoned is supported by other members. Mr. Talbot T. Speer, who is of the conviction that the Mountain City institution is "expensive and outmoded," would prefer that future teachers be schooled under the University of Maryland. There is some logic in his thought in that by a centralization the overall cost of maintaining State Teachers Colleges would be reduced. At the same time, the cost to the individual student would probably be increased under such a plan.

The one member of the commission, who has had a change of mind since the recommendations were made is Dr. Arthur H. Hawkins, noted Cumberland surgeon. He is of the opinion that it would be a mistake to follow through on the recommendations. He has come to that conclusion because he finds the Frostburg situation improved and that the community is exercising greater interest in its continuance and development. There can be no doubt of that but it will be generally agreed that the development phase is restricted.

The Frostburg State Teachers College is serving a great need and until something better is devised to replace it the State would, should it close it, commit a disservice to the people of Western Maryland.

The matter of a Junior College has long been under consideration by those closely associated with the educational problems in this section of Maryland, and it is being kept constantly in mind. Should such a project become a reality it does not of necessity follow that the Frostburg institution would be the nucleus. As a matter of fact, it probably would not because the Frostburg State Teachers College offers neither the facilities which would be required nor the proper location. It would, in all probability, be more centrally situated in relation to Cumberland in order that advantage might be taken of the many things it could offer. It is believed that those who are interesting themselves in such a project have their eyes on sites into which such an ambitious program could be fitted.

But the important thing for now is that there will be no concerted effort to bring about the abandonment of Frostburg State Teachers College. That fact should give relief and satisfaction to the people of not only Frostburg but every community in Western Maryland.

Vicious Paradox Appears

Eleanor Roosevelt gives the anticipated New Deal angle on the congressional investigation of Communist infiltration into the American government. The principal witness, she alleges, is a "self-confessed wartime Soviet spy." The latter is an "evidently neurotic lady;" the persons named are "entirely innocent individuals;" the charges were investigated in 1945 and "no proof was forthcoming."

That kind of talk, from whatever source it comes, won't do at all. It was refuted, even before it appeared in print, by the admissions of others who followed the Communist line for a while and moved out. It is significantly companioned by the orders given Secretary of Commerce Sawyer by President Truman to withhold from Congress the employment records which it requires in its loyalty investigation, and by similar prior orders from President Roosevelt.

Secrecy against the public interest has characterized much of the Administration policy. Thanks to secret pledges made by Roosevelt to Stalin at Yalta the Russians occupy Berlin, control a wide area west of it, and bar Allied shipments by rail or highway across it to 2,000,000 Berlin citizens. From the start also. Roosevelt kept it dark that Communists were entering his Administration, although the Dies committee gave names and positions. Either they were not investigated or "no proof was forthcoming."

Meanwhile, as current testimony asserts, secrets were relayed to Russia by men whom the Roosevelt-Truman brand of secrecy apparently exonerated and protected—a vicious paradox, if ever there was one.

And if a man makes a bigger income, the world will make a beaten path to his door with something to sell.

The Feeding of Germans

While the gentlemen in the Kremlin are trying to decide whether to let Berlin live or make further efforts to destroy it, the 40,000,000 Germans in the British-American occupation zone are eating better than they have at any time since the occupation began. The official ration for the so-called "normal consumer," the lowest ration group, was 1,550 calories per day at the beginning of 1948. (Heavy workers get more food, of course). In July the basic ration jumped to 1,990 calories. The average in the United States is upwards of 3,000, but few other countries approach that—and many Americans eat too much.

Causes of the improved German diet are better crops, the currency reform, which killed the black market and lured quantities of food out of hiding, and aid from the European Recovery Program. The results, already visible, are improved production throughout the joint occupation zone and a new high in Ruhr coal output.

American authorities on the ground estimate that the ration for the 40,000,000 Germans in the west is now between 40 and 50 per cent higher than that of the 17,000,000 Germans in the Russian occupied zone. As one American official put it succinctly, "You can't feed a big Russian occupation army off the land, ship food out of the zone and still feed the Germans well."

The contrast in diets may have no effect upon the overseers in the Kremlin. But it will not be lost on the Germans—including those in the east who can't say openly what they think and feel.

The Disposal Of Waste

Eliminating waste products from any city is an expensive proposition. The easiest solution is to throw it into the river but this practice does not help the first town downstream, which utilizes the water for drinking purposes. On the other hand, it does not always constitute a threat because nature has its own method of purification.

Dr. Van Dellen

When the stream becomes polluted, the organic matter starts to ferment, which requires oxygen; if contamination is heavy, large quantities of this gas are needed. To make up for the loss, the water in turn obtains additional amounts from the air. If the water is shallow, swift moving, or runs over rocks or falls, it has a high rate of aeration and can obtain more oxygen just as fast as it is used up by the fermenting substances. But with deep and slow moving streams, purification is harder to accomplish and requires a longer time.

All such factors must be taken into consideration in dealing with problems of this nature. To overcome the risks, sewage treatment is now employed wherever necessary. This has many health implications but is important also along a different line. Lakes and rivers again become beautiful, the surface is not littered with debris or covered with oil, unsightly deposits no longer spoil the shore line, the odor of fresh water returns and so do the fish, and swimming is possible. In this respect, the entire community benefits.

Disposal of garbage and refuse is another chore. There are three methods now in vogue. In districts where the residue from kitchens and spoilage from markets can be collected separately, the material is often fed to hogs. This is economical because these creatures will change everything we throw their way into pork and lard. But the odor creates a nuisance when the procedure is done on a large scale. Hog cholera is also a possibility, as well as other diseases transmissible by animal to man. One of the greatest objections centers about trichinosis, which is more prevalent in areas where this custom prevails.

From the sanitary standpoint, high temperature incineration of mixed garbage and combustible refuse is ideal. But the measure has its disadvantages, especially when the plants are located in densely populated regions. In addition to the noise and odors from the hauling trucks, slight pollution of the atmosphere may occur from the ash and other dust particles as they leave the smokestacks. The smell of the burning material, however, can be controlled.

The third and oldest method, dumping, is likely to create more criticism than any of the others because no one wants to live nearby for obvious reasons. There are always smoldering fires and fumes of burning rubber, and grease, as well as dust, dirt, rats, and flies. But in recent years a more refined garbage dump has come into fashion; even the name has been changed to "sanitary fill." It is the old trick of burying the litter, but on a large scale. The plan is proving most successful in New York and other regions and has reclaimed land which otherwise would have gone to waste. Through special precautions, health hazards are being eliminated.

Rep. Thomas Got $500 In Campaign Contributions After Arranging Soldier's Transfer; Un-American Activities Committee Head Lives In Glass House

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—The sad, un-American story of how a Congressman's campaign contributions sometimes go hand in hand with certain favors—even such favors as getting men preferred positions in the Army—is revealed in another chapter in the political life of Congressman J. Parnell Thomas, New Jersey Republican.

Believing that Congressmen who investigate other people should be able to withstand investigation themselves, this column has done some probing into the operations of that famous prober — J. Parnell Thomas.

Already it has developed that Thomas, though Chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee, where he should set an example to the world, received kickbacks from three alleged office-workers who didn't come anywhere near his office; also kept one boy away from overseas duty by telling the Army he was an undercover agent for the Un-American Committee. However, this is only part of the story. Here is some more.

In 1944, when Congressman Thomas was up for re-election he received $200 for his campaign expenses from Hyman Tiplitz, 162 Fifth Avenue, New york, manufacturer of Hy-Type Clothes. Again in 1946, Thomas received $100 from Tiplitz for his primary expenses and $200 for his general election campaign.

Now Hyman Tiplitz does not live in New Jersey, is not one of Thomas's constituents. Therefore, why should he take the trouble to contribute? Here was the reason:

Escaping Combat Duty

In 1942, the first year of the war, Hyman Tiplitz had a son, George, in the Army, whose job was to line up entertainment for troops at Ft. Hancock, N. J. On April 15, 1942, young Tiplitz wrote Rep. Thomas:

"Last week our entire regiment was examined to find those physically fit for foreign and field duty. The doctors found me to be in perfect physical condition. Monday of this week I was given yellow fever injection. All this comes after a War Department letter advising all station complements that their personnel would be composed of soldiers who are physically unfit for field duty."

Rep. Thomas wrote back April 30, 1942, advising Tiplitz "not to cross any bridges . . . until you come to them, and when that time comes, you should contact me immediately."

In August, young Tiplitz figured his bridge was about to be crossed and frantically wrote Rep. Thomas:

"All physically fit men will be out of this post before the first of September. . . Every day counts. It is suggested that I be transferred to a technical unit which is the Coast Artillery here, and then I would be doing the same work on special duty."

Tiplitz Gets His Transfer

Just what, if anything, Rep. Thomas did on behalf of young Tiplitz at this particular moment is not clear from the record, but a few days later Tiplitz did get the break he so desperately wanted.

On Sept. he was transferred to the Coast Artillery. His buddies went overseas, but, despite his excellent physical condition, Tiplitz was transferred to the Coast Artillery, later going to Camp Pendleton, Va., where he enjoyed the status of clerk.

But In April, 1943, Tiplitz, not satisfied with being a clerk, sought Thomas's help to get into Officers Candidate School. His commanding officer, Lt. Edward A. Coudriet, Jr., recommended him, but Capt. Bruce T. Nash said no. "Your attention is invited to the fact that the present War Department policies regarding outstanding qualities of leadership are not indicated on the attached rating scale wrote Capt. Nash.

Rep. Thomas wrote Tiplitz various cheery letters promising help in making him an officer, one of them reporting: "Just as soon as I got in Washington I got busy on this case." Another alibied: "Confidentially, we have reduced the schedule for the size of our Army."

As a member of the Military Affairs Committee, Thomas was entitled to get classified information from the War Department. But it is doubtful whether he was entitled to pass it along to others.

Army Gets Wise

Meanwhile, young Tiplitz again found his unit about to go over seas, and again he appealed for help. This time he wanted to get transferred back to Ft. Hancock, N. J. So Rep. Thomas went to work again, and on Nov. 22 reported back to Tiplitz:

"I have today conferred with Col. W. I. Pearson, liaison officer between the House of Representatives and the War Department, and after Col. Pearson had reviewed the copy of Major Spotswood's letter to you and the many endorsements in favor of a transfer from Pendleton to Hancock, he indicated that he would recommend . . . . that you be transferred accordingly."

On Dec. 6, 1943, Tiplitz, apparently certain the transfer was arranged, wrote to Thomas: "Rest assured that no one knows nor has any idea about how transfer is being effected. They understand that the pressure is being brought to bear by Ft. Hancock. I have pleaded complete ignorance."

But the transfer never took place. Col. Pearson, or someone in the Army had begun to get wise to Rep. Thomas. Young Tiplitz at long last had to go to the Pacific with his Coast Artillery unit.

However, because of his status as clerk, he never did get anywhere near the battle front and wrote several letters to Thomas about this fact. One, dated June 11, 1945, from the Philippines, said, almost regretfully:

"Frankly, my particular position as a clerk has given me no opportunity to see actual battle. All I know is what I hear from those who have been up front. In fact, I have yet to come across a Jap either living or dead."

Again on June 6, 1945, Tiplitz wrote that he had sent some battle stars home to his nephew. "This little guy," he commented almost sadly, "is continuously killing Japs in his living room, while his uncle has had no opportunity to either kill or see one alive."

Thomas Gets Reward

Tiplitz also wrote a letter to Rep. Thomas telling how he had saved "over $500 since we left Hawaii and I have sent the money home for dad to purchase bonds for me."

When the new Chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee received this letter, he pencilled a circle round the $500 and put it away for future reference. Significantly, it was exactly $500 that the Tiplitz family contributed to Thomas's re-election campaign.

Another Of Several Current Events Of Esteem For Hoover

By MARK SULLIVAN

Today, at the little town of West Branch, Iowa, is being celebrated the 74th birthday anniversary of ex-President Herbert Hoover. This is one of several current events reflecting a nation-wide phenomenon, the presently high elevation of Mr. Hoover in public esteem and affection.

The celebration at West Branch no doubt will deal with Mr. Hoover's life and works. This if done adequately, could be an American epic. If someone with poetic imagination were to narrate Mr. Hoover's career, it might be done in a series of stanzas, each picturing him as setting out upon one of his far-ranging enterprises and high adventures, and each stanza picturing him as saying, "Saddle my horse and call my men." For that was the nature of Mr. Hoover's career. It was the headship of staffs, many of whom became long-time associates, and came to call him "Chief," in enterprises made romantic by the remote quarters of the world into which they took him, the early ones private and industrial, the later ones public and humanitarian.

Enterprises Not Military

"Saddle my horse and call my men" sounds military, suggests a night setting out upon war or crusade. But Mr. Hoover's enterprises were not military. Until he was 40 they were in the world of private industry, humanitarian only in the sense that they resulted in material enrichment of the world—he dug and refined gold in Australia, tin in Burma, iron in Russia, coal in China, various metals in other countries. By 1914 that was over. To Mr. Hoover at 74, that must seem long ago and far away.

With the beginning of the First World War Mr. Hoover's enterprises became public, their purpose directly benevolent, many of their titles containing the word "relief." Early ones were chairmanship of the American Relief Committee in London (to help Americans stranded in Europe by the war), and the chairmanship of the Commission for Relief in Belgium. In person frequently, or through organizations he headed, Mr. Hoover, throughout the years since he was 40, conducted relief in most of the countries of the world. Relief, through public organization or private benevolence, continued to be a major preoccupation of Mr. Hoover even after his career had expanded into government and public affairs in the broad sense; today he is the head or animating spirit of a score of benevolent organizations.

One would like to think about the elevated esteem for Mr. Hoover on the part of a new generation reflects a broad and definite turn in the spirit of the world—that it justifies Emerson's assurance, "Heartily know, when the half-gods go, the god's arrive."

There Are Signs of This

In America there are signs of this in the return of esteem for Mr. Hoover, and also such men as Mr. Bernard M. Baruch, accompanied by departure from official power of men of the school of thought of Mr. Henry A. Wallace. In America there is going on a clearly recognizable re-magnetizing and re-orienting, a focusing toward old principles and the exponents and symbols of them. Much of this is due to the patient and constant expounding of the principles of American individualism which Mr. Hoover has carried on.

In the world as a whole, however, it can hardly be said that the half-gods are going, the gods coming back. Within a few months we have seen one of the world's authentic great, Prime Minister Smuts of South Africa, deposed from power by his country. And in Britain we see one of the authentic great of history, Winston Churchill, almost a personal embodiment of the British lion, in exile from official power, displaced by Mr. Clement Attlee, whose rank in zoological symbolism was described by Mr. Churchill in a tart epigram, "a sheep in sheep's clothing." Elsewhere in the world, if we rejoice to see Tito of Yugoslavia defy Stalin of Russia, we can hardly think of that as a god challenging a half-god; rather it is a falling-out of leaders on the side of Lucifer, the anti-gods of Communism.

1948 National Campaign Can Now Be Started In Earnest

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 — The national campaign can begin in earnest now. The two national conventions and their supplement—the special session of Congress — are over.

Both sides scored headlines on the special session. President Truman first dramatized the high cost of living as an issue and the Republicans then dramatized the Communist infiltration into the Democratic administration.

The debate on both points will continue till election day. Judged by previous campaigns in American history — one as recently as two years ago—the cost of living affects more voters than any other single issue. It was meat control by OPA and shortage of meat that lost both Houses of Congress for the Democrats in November 1946. Likewise the lack of action by the Democrats against communism in the government was a major factor in that campaign as waged by the Republicans.

Politically speaking, the anti-Communist lineup on the political side is a potent one. Despite the President's effort to make it appear that the House un-American Activities Committee is just now dragging a "red herring" across the trail of other issues, this committee has been in being for several years and every time the question of appropriating funds for continuing the inquiries has arisen, the result has been in favor of the committee by more than a two-thirds vote of the House of Representatives.

Quite A Political Strength

Back of the anti-Communist drive are such powerful organizations as the American Legion, the American Federation of Labor, patriotic societies such as the Daughters of the American Revolution, and a preponderant sentiment inside the Catholic Church which has long been the foe of the irreligious Soviets. It adds up to quite a political strength.

The cost-of-living issue, on the other hand, cuts across parties and organizations and if nothing else were a factor—that is, if President Truman were regarded as a strong candidate otherwise—it would be almost controlling.

The Republicans, moreover, are not going to let the Democrats blame them for the high cost of living. They will point out that price control has meant "black markets" in food and curtailed production of manufactured goods. They will point to the heavy demand from abroad for agricultural products paid for in large part by the Marshall Plan. They will point to the scarcities developed out of European demand and the higher consumption due to high wage levels. They will argue that the Democrats themselves have been unwilling in both Houses of Congress during the special session to sponsor a bill to reimpose the OPA and price control.

Complicated Question

Inflation is a complicated question that is not going to be settled on the stump. Prejudices, however, can be created on both sides and votes influenced even though the argument will get away from the merits. That's why the call for a special session by the President was transparently political—an effort to blame just the Republicans. Small wonder the Republicans retorted with their "spy" investigation. As for "red herrings," the two parties have been drawing them against each other on current issues ever since the 1946 election that produced a political division between the White House and Congress.

No matter what the special session has passed in the way of legislation, the cost of living could not have been affected very much in the next ninety days before election. But the impression that one party or the other is responsible for the current soaring of prices is something the political folks will try to convey, irrespective of what the true causes of high prices may be.

Curve of Contentment

In a presidential campaign, the principal factor is the curve of contentment. It might be assumed that the high wage and employment level leads to a vote of gratitude by the beneficiaries. But it didn't in 1946. As for 1948 there may be something prophetic in this paragraph from the recently published book authorized by Henry L. Stimson, cabinet officer who served under six presidents:

"The election of 1930 had put the opposition in control of both Houses and Mr. Hoover found himself the victim of what Stimson considered the most unfortunate single aspect of the American constitutional system. Like Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson before him, he learned that failures resulting from an impasse between President and Congress are usually held against the President."

Maybe history will repeat itself.

Character Assassination

LOUIS BUDENZ, testifying on the methods of the conspirators to have their will told, a Congressional Committee that those who turn disloyal to the Communist Party are expelled and are subjected to a campaign of character assassination.

This weapon, character assassination, has been employed with virility and violence against all opponents of Communism, all defenders of the American way of life. In fact, the New Dealers, having become familiar with the tactics of their political allies, adopted character assassination as one of their chief weapons for the destruction of their political antagonists, spreading their miserable tales not only through newspaper columnists and radio commentators but by word of mouth, by a malicious whispering campaign which made it impossible for the victim to discover the source of the attack or to defend himself from it.

The technique is based on the assumption that where there is smoke, there must be fire; but in this enterprise, both the smoke and the fire were synthetically prepared by the evil minds engaged in character assassination.

There was Dr. William Wirt, educator of Gary, Ind., who, like so many schoolmen, came down to Washington at the very beginning of the New Deal to establish the New Day. He met the young boys and girls who were full of the devil at various parties and meetings. He was shocked by their treason. He made public what he heard—and every word of his testimony has since been confirmed by the course of events. They ridiculed him. They made him out to be an old dodo. He became the laughing stock of the country and died of humiliation in 1938.

I once attended a cocktail party in the early 1930's at which the infants just out of college were proudly disporting themselves in the Mandarin manner. Their conversation turned on the work of a magazine writer for one of the more conservative publications of the country. One youth, full of cocktails, announced that this writer would be liquidated soon.

So far as magazine writing was concerned, he was. Not a publication would touch his work. His character had been assassinated.

Those who object to the methods of the Dies or the Thomas Committees forget that the La Follette Committee was organized by the Harold Ware group to assassinate the characters of Americans who were defending America against Communism. Such master-minds as John Abt, Charles Kramer, Nathan Witt, and Lee Pressman devised the trickeries of that Committee. Its main object was to create a public antagonism for the organizations of business, the National Association of Manufacturers, the various trade associations, the chambers of commerce and the like and, having poisoned the public mind by distortions of motive and purpose, to vilify any individual associated with such organizations. They succeeded.

Even business men and their wives and children, even conservative editors and clergymen and educators — accepted this character assassination as truthful statements of fact from a government source.

The best example of character assassination in which these revolutionists engaged was the establishment in the public mind of the Hearst-McCormick Patterson axis, as they called it. No such body ever existed in this country. There has never been an agreement on policy or purpose among the large number of publishers, editors, writers and individuals (including Charles Lindbergh) who were smeared with this particular tar brush.

Yet this was built up until our people came to believe it existed, was in some manner associated with Hitler, was disloyal to their country. This lie was built into an accepted fact, and many believed it who should have known better but who were overwhelmed by the constant repetition of falsehood.

And let me say one word about Herbert Hoover. He was manufactured into the national Devil. Hooverism became synonymous with black reaction. The lies heaped upon this kindly man would have broken a lesser spirit. He was blamed for everything, even the mistakes of the New Deal.

His most generous acts were twisted into poisonous purposes. His character was torn to shreds. The dialectics of Communism always requires a Devil —and they made one out of Hoover.

The record of character assassination is one of the miseries of the past 16 years of American life.

Our government, always eager to provide the veterans with every kind of free education, has now approved a school for Black Jack dealing in Nevada. At least, Congress is investigating such a report . . . I suppose the boys who graduate from that school will all be members of the class of '21.

Congress is probably investigating because it's such a sheer waste of time . . . Can you imagine anyone teaching an ex-GI how to deal Black Jack?

And just as in other colleges the better students are probably honored when they complete their courses . . . These will be graduated magnum cum shuffle.

That school has as much tradition as Yale or Harvard . . . Whenever the school song is played, the student body arises and, standing at solemn attention, all men remove their green eyeshades.

And don't think that Black Jack school isn't conducted according to the highest scholastic standards of the day. One student was even expelled for cheating while taking an exam in the course on cheating.

The final exam is rather unusual. The student deals Black Jack to a group of players. Then the players all stand on their heads . . . The student is flunked if any money falls to the floor.

I can hardly wait until next November when the big game is played between the School of Black Jack Dealers and the Crap Dealers University. Of course, crap dealers always have a good eleven . . . but don't worry about the Black Jack dealers . . . they usually have an ace up their sleeves.

Abandonment of Teachers College Not To Be Pressed

The Maryland Commission on Higher Education has decided that it will not pursue further its recommendation for the abandonment of Frostburg State Teachers College. That goes for Princess Anne College, too.

The statement issued by William L. Marbury, chairman of the commission over the weekend, makes it quite clear that its decision was prompted by the realization that it deems it useless to press the recommendation in the face of political opposition and influence.

Mr. Marbury's continued belief that the Frostburg Teachers College should be abandoned is supported by other members. Mr. Talbot T. Speer, who is of the conviction that the Mountain City institution is "expensive and outmoded," would prefer that future teachers be schooled under the University of Maryland. There is some logic in his thought in that by a centralization the overall cost of maintaining State Teachers Colleges would be reduced. At the same time, the cost to the individual student would probably be increased under such a plan.

The one member of the commission, who has had a change of mind since the recommendations were made is Dr. Arthur H. Hawkins, noted Cumberland surgeon. He is of the opinion that it would be a mistake to follow through on the recommendations. He has come to that conclusion because he finds the Frostburg situation improved and that the community is exercising greater interest in its continuance and development. There can be no doubt of that but it will be generally agreed that the development phase is restricted.

The Frostburg State Teachers College is serving a great need and until something better is devised to replace it the State would, should it close it, commit a disservice to the people of Western Maryland.

The matter of a Junior College has long been under consideration by those closely associated with the educational problems in this section of Maryland, and it is being kept constantly in mind. Should such a project become a reality it does not of necessity follow that the Frostburg institution would be the nucleus. As a matter of fact, it probably would not because the Frostburg State Teachers College offers neither the facilities which would be required nor the proper location. It would, in all probability, be more centrally situated in relation to Cumberland in order that advantage might be taken of the many things it could offer. It is believed that those who are interesting themselves in such a project have their eyes on sites into which such an ambitious program could be fitted.

But the important thing for now is that there will be no concerted effort to bring about the abandonment of Frostburg State Teachers College. That fact should give relief and satisfaction to the people of not only Frostburg but every community in Western Maryland.

Vicious Paradox Appears

Eleanor Roosevelt gives the anticipated New Deal angle on the congressional investigation of Communist infiltration into the American government. The principal witness, she alleges, is a "self-confessed wartime Soviet spy." The latter is an "evidently neurotic lady;" the persons named are "entirely innocent individuals;" the charges were investigated in 1945 and "no proof was forthcoming."

That kind of talk, from whatever source it comes, won't do at all. It was refuted, even before it appeared in print, by the admissions of others who followed the Communist line for a while and moved out. It is significantly companioned by the orders given Secretary of Commerce Sawyer by President Truman to withhold from Congress the employment records which it requires in its loyalty investigation, and by similar prior orders from President Roosevelt.

Secrecy against the public interest has characterized much of the Administration policy. Thanks to secret pledges made by Roosevelt to Stalin at Yalta the Russians occupy Berlin, control a wide area west of it, and bar Allied shipments by rail or highway across it to 2,000,000 Berlin citizens. From the start also Roosevelt kept it dark that Communists were entering his Administration, although the Dies committee gave names and positions. Either they were not investigated or "no proof was forthcoming."

Meanwhile, as current testimony asserts, secrets were relayed to Russia by men whom the Roosevelt-Truman brand of secrecy apparently exonerated and protected—a vicious paradox, if ever there was one.

The Feeding of Germans

While the gentlemen in the Kremlin are trying to decide whether to let Berlin live or make further efforts to destroy it, the 40,000,000 Germans in the British-American occupation zone are eating better than they have at any time since the occupation began. The official ration for the so-called "normal consumer," the lowest ration group, was 1,550 calories per day at the beginning of 1948. (Heavy workers get more food, of course). In July the basic ration jumped to 1,990 calories. The average in the United States is upwards of 3,000, but few other countries approach that—and many Americans eat too much.

Causes of the improved German diet are better crops, the currency reform, which killed the black market and lured quantities of food out of hiding, and aid from the European Recovery Program. The results, already visible, are improved production throughout the joint occupation zone and a new high in Ruhr coal output.

American authorities on the ground estimate that the ration for the 40,000,000 Germans in the west is now between 40 and 50 per cent higher than that of the 17,000,000 Germans in the Russian occupied zone. As one American official put it succinctly, "You can't feed a big Russian occupation army off the land, ship food out of the zone and still feed the Germans well."

The contrast in diets may have no effect upon the overseers in the Kremlin. But it will not be lost on the Germans—including those in the east who can't say openly what they think and feel.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The Disposal Of Waste

Eliminating waste products from any city is an expensive proposition. The easiest solution is to throw it into the river but this practice does not help the first town downstream, which utilizes the water for drinking purposes. On the other hand, it does not always constitute a threat because nature has its own method of purification.

Dr. Van Dellen

When the stream becomes polluted, the organic matter starts to ferment, which requires oxygen; if contamination is heavy, large quantities of this gas are needed. To make up for the loss, the water in turn obtains additional amounts from the air. If the water is shallow, swift moving, or runs over rocks or falls, it has a high rate of aeration and can obtain more oxygen just as fast as it is used up by the fermenting substances. But with deep and slow moving streams, purification is harder to accomplish and requires a longer time.

All such factors must be taken into consideration in dealing with problems of this nature. To overcome the risks, sewage treatment is now employed wherever necessary. This has many health implications but is important also along a different line. Lakes and rivers again become beautiful, the surface is not littered with debris or covered with oil, unsightly deposits no longer spoil the shore line, the odor of fresh water returns and so do the fish, and swimming is possible. In this respect, the entire community benefits.

Disposal of garbage and refuse is another chore. There are three methods now in vogue. In districts where the residue from kitchens and spoilage from markets can be collected separately, the material is often fed to hogs. This is economical because these creatures will change everything we throw their way into pork and lard. But the odor creates a nuisance when the procedure is done on a large scale. Hog cholera is also a possibility, as well as other diseases transmissible by animal to man. One of the greatest objections centers about trichinosis, which is more prevalent in areas where this custom prevails.

From the sanitary standpoint, high temperature incineration of mixed garbage and combustible refuse is ideal. But the measure has its disadvantages, especially when the plants are located in densely populated regions. In addition to the noise and odors from the hauling trucks, slight pollution of the atmosphere may occur from the ash and other dust particles as they leave the smokestacks. The smell of the burning material, however, can be controlled.

The third and oldest method, dumping, is likely to create more criticism than any of the others because no one wants to live nearby for obvious reasons. There are always smoldering fires and fumes of burning rubber, and grease, as well as dust, dirt, rats, and flies. But in recent years a more refined garbage dump has come into fashion; even the name has been changed to "sanitary fill." It is the old trick of burying the litter, but on a large scale. The plan is proving most successful in New York and other regions and has reclaimed land which otherwise would have gone to waste. Through special precautions, health hazards are being eliminated.

Baering Down On The News

There has been corruption in high places and I don't mean flag-pole sitters. I mean the commies in government bureaus.

There's no use checking the family silver after each meal if you invited sword swallowers to dinner.

And warming termites in your woodwork is like knitting sweaters for snakes. The old girl who lifts her lamp beside the golden door should trim the torch. The wick is smoking.

Alien agents are infiltrating the works and gumming up the details. The fact they corrupted native Americans means they are picking their spots like a leopard shopping for a new coat. They know there are screwballs who will play ball with anybody if you let them bat.

Rep. Thomas Got $500 In Campaign Contributions After Arranging Soldier's Transfer; Un-American Activities Committee Head Lives In Glass House

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—The sad, un-American story of how a Congressman's campaign contributions sometimes go hand in hand with certain favors—even such favors as getting men preferred positions in the Army—is revealed in another chapter in the political life of Congressman J. Parnell Thomas, New Jersey Republican.

Believing that Congressmen who investigate other people should be able to withstand investigation themselves, this column has done some probing into the operations of that famous prober — J. Parnell Thomas.

Already it has developed that Thomas, though Chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee, where he should set an example to the world, received kickbacks from three alleged office-workers who didn't come anywhere near his office; also kept one boy away from overseas duty by telling the Army he was an undercover agent for the Un-American Committee. However, this is only part of the story. Here is some more.

In 1944, when Congressman Thomas was up for re-election he received $200 for his campaign expenses from Hyman Tiplitz, 162 Fifth Avenue, New york, manufacturer of Hy-Type Clothes. Again in 1946, Thomas received $100 from Tiplitz for his primary expenses and $200 for his general election campaign.

Now Hyman Tiplitz does not live in New Jersey, is not one of Thomas's constituents. Therefore, why should he take the trouble to contribute? Here was the reason:

Escaping Combat Duty

In 1942, the first year of the war, Hyman Tiplitz had a son, George, in the Army, whose job was to line up entertainment for troops at Ft. Hancock, N. J. On April 15, 1942, young Tiplitz wrote Rep. Thomas:

"Last week our entire regiment was examined to find those physically fit for foreign and field duty. The doctors found me to be in perfect physical condition. Monday of this week I was given yellow fever injection. All this comes after a War Department letter advising all station complements that their personnel would be composed of soldiers who are physically unfit for field duty."

Rep. Thomas wrote back April 30, 1942, advising Tiplitz "not to cross any bridges . . . until you come to them, and when that time comes, you should contact me immediately."

In August, young Tiplitz figured his bridge was about to be crossed and frantically wrote Rep. Thomas:

"All physically fit men will be out of this post before the first of September. . . Every day counts. It is suggested that I be transferred to a technical unit which is the Coast Artillery here, and then I would be doing the same work on special duty."

Tiplitz Gets His Transfer

Just what, if anything, Rep. Thomas did on behalf of young Tiplitz at this particular moment is not clear from the record, but a few days later Tiplitz did get the break he so desperately wanted.

On Sept. he was transferred to the Coast Artillery. His buddies went overseas, but, despite his excellent physical condition, Tiplitz was transferred to the Coast Artillery, later going to Camp Pendleton, Va., where he enjoyed the status of clerk.

But In April, 1943, Tiplitz, not satisfied with being a clerk, sought Thomas's help to get into Officers Candidate School. His commanding officer, Lt. Edward A. Coudriet, Jr., recommended him, but Capt. Bruce T. Nash said no. "Your attention is invited to the fact that the present War Department policies regarding outstanding qualities of leadership are not indicated on the attached rating scale wrote Capt. Nash.

Rep. Thomas wrote Tiplitz various cheery letters promising help in making him an officer, one of them reporting: "Just as soon as I got in Washington I got busy on this case." Another alibied: "Confidentially, we have reduced the schedule for the size of our Army."

As a member of the Military Affairs Committee, Thomas was entitled to get classified information from the War Department. But it is doubtful whether he was entitled to pass it along to others.

Army Gets Wise

Meanwhile, young Tiplitz again found his unit about to go over seas, and again he appealed for help. This time he wanted to get transferred back to Ft. Hancock, N. J. So Rep. Thomas went to work again, and on Nov. 22 reported back to Tiplitz:

"I have today conferred with Col. W. I. Pearson, liaison officer between the House of Representatives and the War Department, and after Col. Pearson had reviewed the copy of Major Spotswood's letter to you and the many endorsements in favor of a transfer from Pendleton to Hancock, he indicated that he would recommend . . . . that you be transferred accordingly."

On Dec. 6, 1943, Tiplitz, apparently certain the transfer was arranged, wrote to Thomas: "Rest assured that no one knows nor has any idea about how transfer is being effected. They understand that the pressure is being brought to bear by Ft. Hancock. I have pleaded complete ignorance."

But the transfer never took place. Col. Pearson, or someone in the Army had begun to get wise to Rep. Thomas. Young Tiplitz at long last had to go to the Pacific with his Coast Artillery unit.

However, because of his status as clerk, he never did get anywhere near the battle front and wrote several letters to Thomas about this fact. One, dated June 11, 1945, from the Philippines, said, almost regretfully:

"Frankly, my particular position as a clerk has given me no opportunity to see actual battle. All I know is what I hear from those who have been up front. In fact, I have yet to come across a Jap either living or dead."

Again on June 6, 1945, Tiplitz wrote that he had sent some battle stars home to his nephew. "This little guy," he commented almost sadly, "is continuously killing Japs in his living room, while his uncle has had no opportunity to either kill or see one alive."

Thomas Gets Reward

Tiplitz also wrote a letter to Rep. Thomas telling how he had saved "over $500 since we left Hawaii and I have sent the money home for dad to purchase bonds for me."

When the new Chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee received this letter, he pencilled a circle round the $500 and put it away for future reference. Significantly, it was exactly $500 that the Tiplitz family contributed to Thomas's re-election campaign.

Another Of Several Current Events Of Esteem For Hoover

By MARK SULLIVAN

Today, at the little town of West Branch, Iowa, is being celebrated the 74th birthday anniversary of ex-President Herbert Hoover. This is one of several current events reflecting a nation-wide phenomenon, the presently high elevation of Mr. Hoover in public esteem and affection.

The celebration at West Branch no doubt will deal with Mr. Hoover's life and works. This if done adequately, could be an American epic. If someone with poetic imagination were to narrate Mr. Hoover's career, it might be done in a series of stanzas, each picturing him as setting out upon one of his far-ranging enterprises and high adventures, and each stanza picturing him as saying, "Saddle my horse and call my men." For that was the nature of Mr. Hoover's career. It was the headsship of staffs, many of whom became long-time associates, and came to call him "Chief," in enterprises made romantic by the remote quarters of the world into which they took him, the early ones private and industrial, the later ones public and humanitarian.

Enterprises Not Military

"Saddle my horse and call my men" sounds military, suggests a night setting out upon war or crusade. But Mr. Hoover's enterprises were not military. Until he was 40 they were in the world of private industry, humanitarian only in the sense that they resulted in material enrichment of the world—he dug and refined gold in Australia, tin in Burma, iron in Russia, coal in China, various metals in other countries. By 1914 that was over. To Mr. Hoover at 74, that must seem long ago and far away.

With the beginning of the First World War Mr. Hoover's enterprises became public, their purpose directly benevolent, many of their titles containing the word "relief." Early ones were chairmanship of the American Relief Committee in London (to help Americans stranded in Europe by the war), and the chairmanship of the Commission for Relief in Belgium. In person frequently, or through organizations he headed, Mr. Hoover, throughout the years since he was 40, conducted relief in most of the countries of the world. Relief, through public organization or private benevolence, continued to be a major preoccupation of Mr. Hoover even after his career had expanded into vernment and public affairs in the broad sense; today he is the head or animating spirit of a score of benevolent organizations.

One would like to think about the elevated esteem for Mr. Hoover on the part of a new generation reflects a broad and definite turn in the spirit of the world—that it justifies Emerson's assurance, "Heartily know, when the half-gods go, the god's arrive."

There Are Signs of This

In America there are signs of this in the return of esteem for Mr. Hoover, and also such men as Mr. Bernard M. Baruch, accompanied by departure from official power of men of the school of thought of Mr. Henry A. Wallace. In America there is going on a clearly recognizable re-magnetizing and re-orienting, a focusing toward old principles and the exponents and symbols of them. Much of this is due to the patient and constant expounding of the principles of American individualism which Mr. Hoover has carried on.

In the world as a whole, however, it can hardly be said that the half-gods are going, the gods coming back. Within a few months we have seen one of the world's authentic great, Prime Minister Smuts of South Africa, deposed from power by his country. And in Britain we see one of the authentic great of history, Winston Churchill, almost a personal embodiment of the British lion, in exile from official power, displaced by Mr. Clement Attlee, whose rank in zoological symbolism was described by Mr. Churchill in a tart epigram, "a sheep in sheep's clothing." Elsewhere in the world, if we rejoice to see Tito of Yugoslavia defy Stalin of Russia, we can hardly think of that as a god challenging a half-god; rather it is a falling-out of leaders on the side of Lucifer, the anti-gods of Communism.

There was Dr. William Wirt, educator of Gary, Ind., who, like so many schoolmen, came down to Washington at the very beginning of the New Deal to establish the New Day. He met the young boys and girls who were full of the devil at various parties and meetings. He was shocked by their treason. He made public what he heard—and every word of his testimony has since been confirmed by the course of events. They ridiculed him. They made him out to be an old dodo. He became the laughing stock of the country and died of humiliation in 1938.

I once attended a cocktail party in the early 1930's at which the infants just out of college were proudly disporting themselves in the Mandarin manner. Their conversation turned on the work of a magazine writer for one of the more conservative publications of the country. One youth, full of cocktails, announced that this writer would be liquidated soon.

So far as magazine writing was concerned, he was. Not a publication would touch his work. His character had been assassinated.

Those who object to the methods of the Dies or the Thomas Committees forget that the La Follette Committee was organized by the Harold Ware group to assassinate the characters of Americans who were defending America against Communism. Such master-minds as John Abt, Charles Kramer, Nathan Witt, and Lee Pressman devised the trickeries of that Committee. Its main object was to create a public antagonism for the organizations of business, the National Association of Manufacturers, the various trade associations, the chambers of commerce and the like and, having poisoned the public mind by distortions of motive and purpose, to vilify any individual associated with such organizations. They succeeded.

Even business men and their wives and children, even conservative editors and clergymen and educators — accepted this character assassination as truthful statements of fact from a government source.

The best example of character assassination in which these revolutionists engaged was the establishment in the public mind of the Hearst-McCormick Patterson axis, as they called it. No such body ever existed in this country. There has never been an agreement on policy or purpose among the large number of publishers, editors, writers and individuals (including Charles Lindbergh) who were smeared with this particular tar brush.

Yet this was built up until our people came to believe it existed, was in some manner associated with Hitler, was disloyal to their country. This lie was built into an accepted fact, and many believed it who should have known better but who were overwhelmed by the constant repetition of falsehood.

And let me say one word about Herbert Hoover. He was manufactured into the national Devil. Hooverism became synonymous with black reaction. The lies heaped upon this kindly man would have broken a lesser spirit. He was blamed for everything, even the mistakes of the New Deal.

His most generous acts were twisted into poisonous purposes. His character was torn to shreds. The dialectics of Communism always requires a Devil—and they made one out of Hoover.

The record of character assassination is one of the miseries of the past 16 years of American life.

1948 National Campaign Can Now Be Started In Earnest

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 — The national campaign can begin in earnest now. The two national conventions and their supplement—the special session of Congress — are over.

Both sides scored headlines on the special session. President Truman first dramatized the high cost of living as an issue and the Republicans then dramatized the Communist infiltration into the Democratic administration.

The debate on both points will continue till election day. Judged by previous campaigns in American history — one as recently as two years ago—the cost of living affects more voters than any other single issue. It was meat control by OPA and shortage of meat that lost both Houses of Congress for the Democrats in November 1946. Likewise the lack of action by the Democrats against communism in the government was a major factor in that campaign as waged by the Republicans.

Politically speaking, the anti-Communist lineup on the political side is a potent one. Despite the President's effort to make it appear that the House un-American Activities Committee is just now dragging a "red herring" across the trail of other issues, this committee has been in being for several years and every time the question of appropriating funds for continuing the inquiries has arisen, the result has been in favor of the committee by more than a two-thirds vote of the House of Representatives.

Quite A Political Strength

Back of the anti-Communist drive are such powerful organizations as the American Legion, the American Federation of Labor, patriotic societies such as the Daughters of the American Revolution, and a preponderant sentiment inside the Catholic Church which has long been the foe of the irreligious Soviets. It adds up to quite a political strength.

The cost-of-living issue, on the other hand, cuts across parties and organizations and if nothing else were a factor—that is, if President Truman were regarded as a strong candidate otherwise—it would be almost controlling.

The Republicans, moreover, are not going to let the Democrats blame them for the high cost of living. They will point out that price control has meant "black markets" in food and curtailed production of manufactured goods. They will point to the heavy demand from abroad for agricultural products paid for in large part by the Marshall Plan. They will point to the scarcities developed out of European demand and the higher consumption due to high wage levels. They will argue that the Democrats themselves have been unwilling in both Houses of Congress during the special session to sponsor a bill to reimpose the OPA and price control.

Complicated Question

Inflation is a complicated question that is not going to be settled on the stump. Prejudices, however, can be created on both sides and votes influenced even though the argument will get away from the merits. That's why the call for a special session by the President was transparently political—an effort to blame just the Republicans. Small wonder the Republicans retorted with their "spy" investigation. As for "red herrings," the two parties have been drawing them against each other on current issues ever since the 1946 election that produced a political division between the White House and Congress.

No matter what the special session has passed in the way of legislation, the cost of living could not have been affected very much in the next ninety days before election. But the impression that one party or the other is responsible for the current soaring of prices is something the political folks will try to convey, irrespective of what the true causes of high prices may be.

Curve of Contentment

In a presidential campaign, the principal factor is the curve of contentment. It might be assumed that the high wage and employment level leads to a vote of gratitude by the beneficiaries. But it didn't in 1946. As for 1948 there may be something prophetic in this paragraph from the recently published book authorized by Henry L. Stimson, cabinet officer who served under six presidents:

"The election of 1930 had put the opposition in control of both Houses and Mr. Hoover found himself the victim of what Stimson considered the most unfortunate single aspect of the American constitutional system. Like Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson before him, he learned that failures resulting from an impasse between President and Congress are usually held against the President."

Maybe history will repeat itself.

Character Assassination

LOUIS BUDENZ, testifying on the methods of the conspirators to have their will told, a Congressional Committee that those who turn disloyal to the Communist Party are expelled and are subjected to a campaign of character assassination.

This weapon, character assassination, has been employed with virility and violence against all opponents of Communism, all defenders of the American way of life. In fact, the New Dealers, having become familiar with the tactics of their political allies, adopted character assassination as one of their chief weapons for the destruction of their political antagonists, spreading their miserable tales not only through newspaper columnists and radio commentators but by word of mouth, by a malicious whispering campaign which made it impossible for the victim to discover the source of the attack or to defend himself from it.

The technique is based on the assumption that where there is smoke, there must be fire; but in this enterprise, both the smoke and the fire were synthetically prepared by the evil minds engaged in character assassination.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Our government, always eager to provide the veterans with every kind of free education, has now approved a school for Black Jack dealing in Nevada. At least, Congress is investigating such a report . . . I suppose the boys who graduate from that school will all be members of the class of '21.

Congress is probably investigating because it's such a sheer waste of time . . . Can you imagine anyone teaching an ex-GI how to deal Black Jack?

And just as in other colleges the better students are probably honored when they complete their courses . . . These will be graduated magnum cum shuffle.

That school has as much tradition as Yale or Harvard . . . Whenever the school song is played, the student body arises and, standing at solemn attention, all men remove their green eyeshades.

And don't think that Black Jack school isn't conducted according to the highest scholastic standards of the day. One student was even expelled for cheating while taking an exam in the course on cheating.

The final exam is rather unusual. The student deals Black Jack to a group of players. Then the players all stand on their heads . . . The student is flunked if any money falls to the floor.

I can hardly wait until next November when the big game is played between the School of Black Jack Dealers and the Crap Dealers University. Of course, crap dealers always have a good eleven . . . but don't worry about the Black Jack dealers . . . they usually have an ace up their sleeves.

WCUM Broadcasts Start August 21

WCUM, a new Columbia Broadcasting Company outlet in Cumberland, will go on the air August 21 at 6 a. m., according to Manager Jack Stewart.

The 100-watt station will operate on 1490 kilocycles under a Federal Communications Commission permit, Stewart said. It is possible that the power will be increased to 250 watts by the FCC within 60 days of opening after various measurements and data are secured, he added.

An application has also been filed with the FCC for a television and FM permit. If the rights are granted, a transmitting post will be erected atop Dan's Rock in the western part of Allegany County, Stewart added.

Besides Stewart, the staff includes Charles Krapf, this city, sports announcer; Wes Carr, formerly of Kansas City, announcer; Sam Cozad, this city, announcer and program department, and Roma Carpenter, who has worked with Hagerstown Station WJEJ, announcer.

Plans for a formal opening in September featuring John Charles Thomas, famous singer, will be announced later.

Clinic Today

Dr. William F. McFarland, assistant county health officer, will conduct a child welfare clinic at 10 a. m. today in Flintstone Fire Hall.

Raese FCC Radio Permit Contested

The grant of a tentative permit by the Federal Communications Commission to Richard Aubrey "Dyke" Raese, Morgantown, W. Va., to operate a radio station here was contested yesterday by the Tri-State Broadcasting Company, a local concern.

The Cumberland company filed exceptions to the permit and asked the FCC for oral arguments on the case. Raese had been granted tentative permission to operate the station July 20 but has not been here to arrange for facilities. The permit would have become final if there were no objections within 20 days of that date.

At the time of the provisional grant, the application of the Tri-State Company had been denied. The station would operate on standard wave length of 1230 kilocycles with 250 watts power and unlimited time.

The local concern had a license for FM broadcasting but relinquished it pending the outcome of the AM permit application.

WCUM Broadcasts Start August 21

WCUM, a new Columbia Broadcasting Company outlet in Cumberland, will go on the air August 21 at 6 a. m., according to Manager Jack Stewart.

The 100-watt station will operate on 1490 kilocycles under a Federal Communications Commission permit, Stewart said. It is possible that the power will be increased to 250 watts by the FCC within 60 days of opening after various measurements and data are secured, he added.

An application has also been filed with the FCC for a television and FM permit. If the rights are granted, a transmitting post will be erected atop Dan's Rock in the western part of Allegany County, Stewart added.

Besides Stewart, the staff includes Charles Krapf, this city, sports announcer; Wes Carr, formerly of Kansas City, announcer; Sam Cozad, this city, announcer and program department, and Roma Carpenter, who has worked with Hagerstown Station WJEJ, announcer.

Plans for a formal opening in September featuring John Charles Thomas, famous singer, will be announced later.

Clinic Today

Dr. William F. McFarland, assistant county health officer, will conduct a child welfare clinic at 10 a. m. today in Flintstone Fire Hall.

Raese FCC Radio Permit Contested

The grant of a tentative permit by the Federal Communications Commission to Richard Aubrey "Dyke" Raese, Morgantown, W. Va., to operate a radio station here was contested yesterday by the Tri-State Broadcasting Company, a local concern.

The Cumberland company filed exceptions to the permit and asked the FCC for oral arguments on the case. Raese had been granted tentative permission to operate the station July 20 but has not been here to arrange for facilities. The permit would have become final if there were no objections within 20 days of that date.

At the time of the provisional grant, the application of the Tri-State Company had been denied. The station would operate on standard wave length of 1230 kilocycles with 250 watts power and unlimited time.

The local concern had a license for FM broadcasting but relinquished it pending the outcome of the AM permit application.

Jacquelyn Lamm Honored By Winifred McCloskey

Bridge Luncheon, Shower Given

Miss Winifred McCloskey entertained with a luncheon and miscellaneous shower in compliment to Miss Jacquelyn Lamm, Saturday at her home, Mt. Royal Avenue.

Miss Lamm, 216 North Centre Street, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Lamm, is to become the bride of William A. Shirer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scot Shirer, Oakland, August 21 at 4 o'clock, in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, with Miss McCloskey and Scot Shirer as the attendants.

The shower gifts were arranged in a white wheelbarrow decorated with streamers of white and green crepe paper and arranged to represent a surrey. It was drawn by a three-foot high stuffed horse. The bride-elect also was presented with a picture book made by Miss McCloskey containing colored pictures of all the events concerning her engagement and leading to her marriage.

Pastel shades of garden flowers, arranged in three tiers, centered the luncheon table. The nuptial motif was carried out with miniature brides on either side and the ends of the centerpiece, and with cupid place cards and tallies.

Cards featured the entertainment during the afternoon and prizes were won by Mrs. Harry Lamm, Mrs. Cyril Laffey, Washington, and Miss Paula Williams.

Others attending were Mrs. Buford Saville, Romney; Miss Miriam Lipscomb, Pierce, W. Va., Mrs. John Sharrett, Mrs. Nobel Weaver, Miss Barbara Jane Kitzmiller, Miss Jacqueline Loar, Mrs. Albert Neff, Mrs. George Hess, Miss Jean Hess, Miss Louise Bluhm and Miss Margaret McFarland.

Recent Bride Honored

Miss Betty Ratke entertained with a surprise miscellaneous shower for Mrs. Edward McMahon recently at her home, South Street. Fourteen guests attended.

The former Miss Rosemary Kessler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kessler, 911 Louisiana Avenue, became the bride of Edward McMahon, son of J. P. McMahon, 521 Patterson Avenue, July 19.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 9—(INS)—Robert Young's family — all four daughters — Carole Ann, 14; Barbara Queen, 10; Betty Lou, 4; and Kathy, 2 — are sharing honors with their father and June Lockhart in his next picture.

The story is "The World and Little Willie." The movie is being made by Bob's independent company, Cavalier Productions, at Eagle-Lion. That means Eagle-Lion, U.S.A. in Europe, Eagle-Lion means J. Arthur Rank.

Louella Parsons

In "The World and Little Willie" is also that charming little Lockhart girl — her first movie since she had her tremendous hit on Broadway.

I'll be curious to see Bob divide his time being a star and an anxious daddy of his four girls. The two older children are talented pianists.

I lunched with Spencer Tracy and Deborah Kerr at Elstree Studios. That's MGM's new, modern plant in England, and Ben Goetz, who is in charge, has done a great job. He is well liked, too.

After lunch with Deborah and Spence, I watched them being directed by George Cukor in some scenes for "Edward, My Son." This movie is ahead of schedule, unusual in England.

In spite of all the marvelous reviews "Hamlet" has received, and the applause given Laurence Olivier and Jean Simmons, it's not J. Arthur Rank's favorite picture. He made no secret at the opening of "Oliver Twist" that the Dickens story is the best—as far as he is concerned — and that's the picture he wants to exploit.

Every time I talked to Rank, he seemed to want to avoid discussing "Hamlet" and to talk about "Oliver Twist."

What memories came back to me at the homecoming party given for me at Ocean House, Marion Davies' former home, where the great of the world were entertained at one time or another and where I have spent so many happy hours.

In all Europe there is no more lavish or delightful place to hold a party. The cuisine is out of this world and the whole club has an old world charm.

The beautiful rooms certainly set off the gowns worn by such beauties as Irene Dunne, Joan Fontaine, Betty Hutton, Dorothy Lamour and Lorena Danker.

There is a whisper that a big race track scandal will hit the front pages before long . . . something that happened at one of the tracks near Los Angeles.

The first public appearance of the Los Angeles contingent of the Olympic games will be at the benefit circus for St. John hospital September 4. I got back prepared to work hard, and I find most of the work has been done.

Say Kay Keyser in Paris and he told me how well everything is going and all about the circus, which should be the greatest show ever given.

I had a talk with Sister Kenny who was lunching in the pump room in Chicago. That's where everyone seems to go between trains, and it's usually like old home week, with mine host Ernie Byfield doing the honors.

Macoco asked me all about Kay Williams Spreckels, his ex-wife. He's still carrying the torch for her. Speaking of Kay, her ex-sister-in-law, Dorothy Spreckels, is about to marry Andre Dubonnet, heir to the Dubonnet fortune. I saw them at Cap Antibe.

Edward Morley, star of "Edward My Son," arrived in New York. He'll spend a month vacation in California before the play opens.

Bernard Strauss, young producer of "For Love or Money," the play in which June Lockhart was such a hit, arrived in town today to close a "deal" for the picture rights.

Recommended: A Campaign Of Courtesy Toward This Girl's Mother

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 and like a fellow who is 23. I brought him up to my house one night and introduced him to my parents. They greeted him in a friendly fashion, but after he had gone, my mother said that he looked like a gangster, which isnt true. He is a well-mannered fellow and brings me home early when we are out. My mother also said that he is too old for me. Other things she does not like about him are that he has a car and is a different nationality from me. I want to go out with him, but she forbids me to see him. I could see him on the sly, but I've always done things on the up and up and don't want to change now.

"GINNY"

Dear "Giny":

If you have really told me the whole story, and not just your side of it, then it does seem as though your mother's reasons for not wishing you to go out with this young man are rather unfair. However, I think you would make a mistake to see him on the sly, because such a way of doing things usually leads to more trouble in the end.

If I were you, I would explain to your friend how things stand, and see if he can't put on a little campaign to win your mother over. Next time he comes to the house he might bring her some small gift like a box of candy, or a few flowers, and spend a little time visiting with her. Adults always feel kindly disposed toward young people who take an interest in them. Then let him very courteously ask your mother if he may take you out for the evening. I doubt if she would have the heart to say "no" directly to him.

Siamese Say ILO Costly

BANGKOK—(AP)—Siam, postage-stamp sized as countries go, contributes nearly as much to the International Labor Organization as Canada, more than 15 times as large. The Siamese delegate to the ILO conference at Montreal, Prince Sakol, protested this in a recent interview here.

Since Siam had not implemented any of the ILO conventions, he said, she should not have to pay as much as a country with the degree of labor legislation and industrial output of Canada. (Siam's last contribution to the ILO was 240,000 ticals —about $12,000). Although a member of the ILO since its inception under the League of Nations in 1919, Siam is handicapped at conferences because she sends only one delegate. Other nations send two—one for capital and one for labor.

There are three species of cultivated barley.

3,000,000 Covered

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. (AP)—The Labor Department reported today that at least 3,000,000 American workers are covered by health-pension insurance contracts with employers.

Recommended: A Campaign Of Courtesty Toward This Girl's Mother

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 and like a fellow who is 23. I brought him up to my house one night and introduced him to my parents. They greeted him in a friendly fashion, but after he had gone, my mother said that he looked like a gangster, which isnt true. He is a well-mannered fellow and brings me home early when we are out. My mother also said that he is too old for me. Other things she does not like about him are that he has a car and is a different nationality from me. I want to go out with him, but she forbids me to see him. I could see him on the sly, but I've always done things on the up and up and don't want to change now.

"GINNY"

Dear "Giny":

If you have really told me the whole story, and not just your side of it, then it does seem as though your mother's reasons for not wishing you to go out with this young man are rather unfair. However, I think you would make a mistake to see him on the sly, because such a way of doing things usually leads to more trouble in the end.

If I were you, I would explain to your friend how things stand, and see if he can't put on a little campaign to win your mother over. Next time he comes to the house he might bring her some small gift like a box of candy, or a few flowers, and spend a little time visiting with her. Adults always feel kindly disposed toward young people who take an interest in them. Then let him very courteously ask your mother if he may take you out for the evening. I doubt if she would have the heart to say "no" directly to him.

Siamese Say ILO Cosily

BANGKOK—(AP)—Siam, postage-stamp sized as countries go, contributes nearly as much to the International Labor Organization as Canada, more than 15 times as large. The Siamese delegate to the ILO conference at Montreal, Prince Sakol, protested this in a recent interview here.

Since Siam had not implemented any of the ILO conventions, he said, she should not have to pay as much as a country with the degree of labor legislation and industrial output of Canada. (Siam's last contribution to the ILO was 240,000 ticals —about $12,000). Although a member of the ILO since its inception under the League of Nations in 1919, Siam is handicapped at conferences because she sends only one delegate. Other nations send two—one for capital and one for labor.

There are three species of cultivated barley.

3,000,000 Covered

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. (AP)—The Labor Department reported today that at least 3,000,000 American workers are covered by health-pension insurance contracts with employers.

Lloyd Mangrum Edges Snead For $10,000 In Golf Playoff

Beats Sammy By Stroke Earns $22,500 In Week

By CHARLES EINSTEIN
International News Service Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (INS) — All-American Champion Lloyd Mangrum completed the richest double-slam in golfing history today when he came from behind in approved thriller fashion to nip Sam Snead for the $10,000 so-called "world's championship."

Dutch Harrison also participated in the three-man playoff viewed by 10,000 enthusiasts, said to comprise the largest assembly ever to follow a single golfing match.

Mangrum, who had birdie-par for the last two holes to Snead's par bogey, emerged with the medal card of 70 strokes, two below par for Tam O'Shanter's extended fairways. Snead had 71 and Harrison had 73.

Mangrum Earns $22,500

Thus ended seven days of golf at George May's Tam O'Shanter course, and Mangrum's one-man gold rush. His prize-money total, in winning the All-American Friday and the "world's championship" today, zoomed to the happy tune of $22,500.

As winner of the All-American, Mangrum collected $5,000. As so-called home professional at Tam O'Shanter, he collected an extra $5,000 from May for being the leading money-winner on the circuit.

For breaking the course record with a nine-under-par yesterday, to tie Harrison and Snead at 135 for the 36-hole "world's championship," the dapper Texan pulled down a bonus of $2,500. And today's $10,000 plum was winner-take-all.

To top it all, Mangrum won an extra side bet of $1,000 from sponsor May by winning today. However, neither that nor today's $10,000 nor any bonus awards counted in Mangrum's P.G.A. money-winning score, which remains at $25,944. The "world's championship" is not counted because it is an invitational tourney.

The apt mountaineer from West Virginia, who missed one U. S. open title by taking an 8 on the final hole and another by missing a 30-inch putt, led the way today through the 13th hole, where a second successive bogey on his part enabled Mangrum to draw even.

Snead dropped a five-footer for a birdie 4 on the 15th to regain a one-stroke edge, but Mangrum duplicated the feat on the 17th to even things coming up on 18.

Snead Wastes Shot

At this juncture Snead chose to exhibit the original collapsible game of golf which many say he both originated and patented. Specifically, he put his drive smack behind a tree to the right of the fairway and had to waste a shot getting back.

The rest was very methodical. Mangrum on in two, brushed his first putt to within inches of home, then holed out for his par. Snead, needing a 25-footer for his par, rolled past by two feet.

Harrison, who had a tidy 64 yesterday, went two strokes over par on the very first hole when he took a 6. He got back by birds on five and six, but hit spectators with his shots both on the eighth and ninth, and was forced to accept bogeys on both of these holes.

The cards:

America's Cage Team Trounces Uruguay, 63-28

U. S. To Play Mexico In Semi-Final Round

By BOB CONSIDINE
International News Service Sports Writer

LONDON, Aug. 9 (INS)—America's flashy, favored basketball team turned on the power tonight to smash outclassed Uruguay, 63 to 28, and advance into the semi-finals of the Olympic basketball competition.

Ralph Beard

The U. S. quintet will face the Mexican entry in the semis, in what is expected to be an exciting duel. America will be favored.

Mexico exhibited speed and defensive finesse in winning her quarter-finals match from stubborn Korea, 43 to 32.

France's basketeers prevented a fourth "new world" entry from gaining the semi-finals by whipping Chile 53 to 52 in an overtime thriller. Chile forged a 25 to 18 lead at halftime and nursed a two-point advantage just before the final buzzer.

rance Edges Chile

France tied the game, 50 to 50, with seconds to go, and then notched her one-point triumph.

Brazil became the third Western Hemisphere country to gain the semi-finals by defeating a resourceful Czechoslovakian quintet, 28 to 23.

The South Americans will be favored over France in their semi-finals game.

The Uruguayan team, which, prior to the match issued a "we don't fear the Americans" Dictum, never was in the ball game. The American defenses, sluggish in spots in the preliminary rounds, were superb today. The South Americans weaved and "cut" continuously, but they still couldn't break through.

Beard Is Brilliant

Ralph Beard, Kentucky's live-wire All-American, was brilliant on both defense and offense, particularly the latter. The bluegrass lightning boy led fast-break sorties all evening in a dazzling exhibition of passing and drive that left both Uruguay and the spectators gasping.

But Browning, America's head basketball coach, refused to crow over the one-sided triumph, in which the U. S. compiled a 31 to 17 half-time lead. Browning said:

"We took them seriously. They are a good team."

The Uruguayan coach, Cieslimkas, obviously was awed by America's finesse. He said:

"We did our utmost to make the victory margin as narrow as possible. It has been an honor to play against such a superb team."

SQUIRREL HUNTING SEASON TO REMAIN SAME AS LAST YEAR

Maryland's squirrel hunting season will open September 15 and close September 30, Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, announced last night.

The season for hunting squirrels will be the same as in 1947 in that this species of game cannot be taken during the regular upland season which gets under way November 15, and ends December 31. No small game can be taken during the deer season December 6 to 11, inclusive.

The bag limit on squirrels remains the same—six a day.

Cumberland P.E. Tossers Wallop Winchester, 31-8

Joe Garlitz Hits Two Homers In 2nd Victory

Cumberland made it two straight in the Potomac Edison Company's Inter-District Softball Tournament by swamping Winchester, Va., yesterday at Romney, W. Va., by the score of 31 to 8. The game was limited to six innings.

The winners hammered two Winchester pitchers for 27 hits and scored 21 runs in the second inning during which Joe Garlitz hit two homers and a double in three trips to the plate and Joe Buday also hit for the circuit. Garlitz's first four-bagger came with the bases loaded and there were two aboard when he teed off the second time. The three homers accounted for eight tallies during the explosive second frame.

In addition to his four-master, Buday smacked out a pair of singles. Kemp belted two doubles and a single and Cook collected a double and two one-base knocks.

Cumberland played errorless ball afield behind the pitching of Morrison and Long.

Last week Cumberland opened the inter-district series with a 10-7 victory over Romney.

Martinsburg, W. Va., will be Cumberland's next opponent and the winner of this game is expected to play the finalist in the Hagerstown-Frederick tourney for the P. E. system softball championship.

Yesterday's score:

| | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| CUMBERLAND | 4(21)0 | 204 | 31 | 27 | 0 |
| WINCHESTER | 011 | 240 | 8 | 14 | 6 |

Washington's 4-Oared Crew Wins Over Swiss

England Noses Out U. S. In Regattas, 25 To 24

By BOB CONSIDINE
International News Service Sports Writer

HENLEY - ON - THAMES, Eng., Aug. 9. (INS)—Eight giants from the University of California swept like a golden arrow down the middle of the placid Thames today to trounce Britain and Norway in the finals of the eight-oared shell competition.

The triumph of the bolt upright California oarsmen over the splashing, sway-backed Cambridge crew, which represented England, climaxed a brilliant day of finals which also saw a splendid makeshift University of Washington four with coxswain defeat Switzerland and Denmark.

Yale Four Is Third

The coxswainless Yale four, the third American boat in the seven finals, finished third and last to Italy and Denmark, after nearly being fouled by the wandering Danish shell.

It was a day well begun and well finished, as austere mother England kicked up her heels in the brilliant sunlight with a waving of pennants and day-long festivities in this Elizabethan town—which has been the home of such racing since 1839.

England won two firsts and a second to take regatta honors with 25 points. The United States—with two firsts and a third — had 24 points.

Italy, which won one race, scored 23 points.

Australian Triumphs

Australia scored a resounding triumph in the single sculls, won by Mervyn Wood, who earlier in the year won the Diamond Sculls on the same course.

Wood, a business man, and father of two children, beat Eduardo Risso, Uruguayan bicycle store manager, who eliminated America's John Kelly, Jr., on Saturday. Third and last was Romolo Catasta, an Italian doctor of political science.

Britain Wins Double Sculls

Britain defeated Denmark and Uruguay in the double sculls, Denmark defeated Italy and Hungary in the pairs with coxswain, and Britain defeated Switzerland and Italy in the pairs without coxswain.

The feature of the day, though, was the victory scored by the great California eight, commanded by brilliant little coxswain Ralph Purchase, of Portland, Ore., and stroked by rippling-muscled Ian Turner, of Oakland, Cal.

The Americans—perpetuating an unbroken victory surge which started in 1920 when our eights participated in the Olympic rowing for the first time—won by 2½ lengths over Britain in five minutes, 56.7. The time was excellent considering the strong current against which they rowed.

Better Than 1932 Crew

British coach Harold Rickett characterized the Americans as "a great crew—better than the one I rowed against in 1932."

Britain, pulling along at a 47-stroke beat, led for the first 750 yards today, but the Americans drew abreast at that point, and quickly moved on to a half-length edge.

The California boat, made up entirely of Californians, included Dave Turner, Jim Hardy, George Ahlgren, Lloyd Butler, Dave Brown, Justus Smith and John Stack—besides stroke Turner and coxswain Purchase.

The victorious Washington four-oared shell with coxswain was made up of the stern four from the University of Washington junior varsity eight and got a tremendous kick out of victory.

Makeshift Outfit Scores

This makeshift outfit—Gordon Giovanelli, Robert Will, Robert Martin, Warren Westlund and coxswain Al Morgan—has been setting the rowing world on its ears since being brought together. These boys broke the world record in Olympic tryouts before sailing for England.

The Yale crew, which represented America in the four without coxswain race, got a bad break in their event when the Danish team wandered off the course and nearly collided with the American boat.

The victorious Italian boat, made up of workers in a motorcycle factory at Lake Como, won in six minutes, 39 seconds. The second place Danes were slightly more than four seconds behind and the Yale boat a couple of good pulls still farther back.

The Yale boat was manned by John Kingsbury, of Herden, Conn.; Stuart Griffin, of Milford, Conn.; Gregory Gates, of Montclair, N. J., and Bob Perew, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Coach Al Walz, of Yale, said after the race that his boys got all the worst of it from the breaks including being forced to row in the wake of the meandering Danish boat.

Victors Duck Coxswain

The staid British were amazed and a little startled when after the last race of the day, the big Californians grabbed coxswain Purchase of the eight-oared shell and threw him into the Thames in keeping with time-honored American custom.

City League's All-Stars Win Series Opener

5-Run Rally In Sixth Sinks County Team, 5-2

Bobby Miller of Hyndman was on his way to Softball's Hall of Fame yesterday but he ran into a detour in the 6th inning when a five-run rally enabled the City Softball League All-Stars to come from behind and defeat the County Softball League All-Stars in the opening game of a benefit series at Community Park. The score was 5-2.

Up to the explosive 6th, Miller had pitched no-run, no-hit ball and was out in front by the score of 2-0 when four hits, including two doubles, coupled with an error and field's choice enabled the City Leaguers to sew up the game.

Orndorff Starts Rally

Ed Decker struck out to open the inning and William "Bee' Orndorff started the fireworks with a two-bagger. Doyle George was safe on an error. Then Vernon Penner smacked a single to send Orndorff home. Lou Riehl doubled to score George and Penner counted on "Red" Whitman's fielder's choice. "Pete" Elliott climaxed the big rally with a timely two-bagger that scored Riehl and Whitman.

The four hits yielded by Miller were packed into that one big inning. Ed Decker, who went the route for the City Leaguers gave up six hits, two of which were credited to Ken Troutman, of the Narrows Park Cardinals. Decker fanned four and Miller whiffed one.

Score Two Unearned Runs

In the fourth inning the County League team scored its two unearned runs after two out. An error, wild throw and singles by Troutman and Wertz produced the tallies.

Frank Riehl of the Amvets and "Moose" Crabtree directed the play of the City Leaguers.

The game netted gate receipts of $147 which will go toward the injured players' fund in both circuits. The teams will split the receipts 60 per cent to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser at the conclusion of the three-game series.

Play Again Tomorrow

Tomorrow the teams will clash at 6:15 p. m. at the Hyndman Baseball Park. The site for the third game on Friday will be determined by the flip of a coin. Score.

SPORT SLANTS

Locals Going To "Grand" Sanders Won Three Titles

Cadets Land Tulane Star Fair Dates For This Fall

By C. V. BURNS

At least four gunners of the tri-state area expect to compete in the Grand American Handicap, the blue ribbon event of trapshooting, to be held at Vandalia, Ohio, Friday, August 27.

Here's a sport that has been carried on for 47 years and believe it, or not, nobody has ever won the top cash award more than once.

The Grand American Handicap is a 100-target event and the contestants shoot from the 16 to 25 yard line, depending on their handicap. A $10,000 purse is guaranteed regardless of the number of shooters participating.

Last year there were a total of 2,700 entries and the surplus boosted the prize money to $21,203. The winner received $1,500, runner-up $1,000 and third place finisher $400. Close to 200 gunners shared the cash awards.

Among the scatter gun artists planning to take a shot at this dough are Arthur P. Hoffa, mayor of Barton; John Lighter and Russell McElfish of Cumberland and John Barton, dairyman and moose hunter from Pinto, Md. Ed McDonald, of Headsville, W. Va., who has shot at numerous Grand American events is also expected to be on hand when the firing gets under way in Ohio.

The last time anyone from this section crashed the spotlight at Vandalia, Ohio, was in 1941 when Mrs. John "Bunny" Sanders of Keyser, won the Champion of Champions race for women with a score of 98 out of 100.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanders won the husband and wife championship twice at the national shoot. In 1939 they broke 382 out of 400 to bag the title and in 1938 they smashed 191 out of 200 to annex the crown.

Local gunners who were among the 94 in the big handicap shoot at Ruffsdale, Pa., last week marveled at the exhibition staged there by Joe Heistand, Hillsboro, Ohio, gunner who has been winning trapshooting titles since 1935.

Heistand was even shooting 'em from the hip at Ruffsdale and broke 89 out of 100 from 25 yards.

We last saw Joe perform in 1936 in the Eastern Zone Shoot at the Meadow Lark Gun Club, Keyser, and he was really bustin' targets that afternoon.

In 1938 at Vandalia, Heistand broke 966 consecutive targets from 18 yards during the tourney to establish a world's record. He had a perfect score in every event but failed to win some of the events in the shoot-off of ties which did not count the scoring.

Last year Heistand broke 100 straight to win the Champion of Champions race at Vandalia then took the National Amateur at Travers Island, N. Y., with 197 out of 200.

The new mentor is Thomas G. Glass, Frederick attorney, who will tutor the Cadets on a part-time basis. He will continue to practice law.

A native of Marlin, Texas, Glass quarterbacked Tulane in 1939, 1940 and 1941, playing in the Sugar Bowl game of 1940 in which the Green Wave lost a 14-13 heartbreaker to Texas A. & M., before 73,000, one of the largest crowds ever to witness a grid game in Dixie.

That 1939 Tulane team, incidentally, was hailed by experts as the "powerhouse" team of all-time in Dixie. It won eight and tied one, rolled up 19 points to 46 for the opposition and numbered among its victims were Fordham, Columbia, Alabama and Mississippi.

Last year Glass scouted for the Buffalo Bills of the All-America Football Conference. At Frederick he succeeds Mike Hardy whose contract was not renewed.

Frederick has played Beall High for the past two years and will likely appear on the Mountain City eleven's schedule this fall.

Dismissal of James Anthony "Rip" Collins as manager of the San Diego (Cal.) Padres the other day brought back memories of the days when the "Ripper" was a member of the great Johnstown (Pa.) team that won the first Middle Atlantic League pennant in 1925.

Joe Cronin, Mike Martineck, Jose Olivares, Eddie Montague, Nat Hickey, Grover Hinebaugh, Dick Vassey, Norman McNeill, "Lefty" Schmutte and Jack Matthews were also members of that classy aggregation.

Since playing for the Johnnies in 1925 and 1926 when he hit .327 and .313, Collins has covered quite a bit of ground. He graduated from the Rochester Red Wings to the St. Louis Cardinals and played with the "Gas House Gang" from 1931 through 1936. Four of the six years he was with the Cards he hit above .300. His greatest year was 1934 when he batted .333 and finished fourth in the National League. Paul Waner was the leader that season. "Rip" also hit 35 circuit drives to tie Mel Ott for home run honors in 1934.

In 1937 and 1938 Collins played with the Chicago Cubs.

During his eight years' stay in the majors "Rip" belted 135 home runs.

He has been associated with minor and major league teams as player and manager since 1923—a total of 25 years.

ALPINE BOY, WHICH CAUSED JOCKEY'S DEATH, DESTROYED

JARRETTSVILLE, Md., Aug. 9 (AP) — A 12-year-old blind gelding which ran into a rail at Cumberland and caused the death of a jockey has been destroyed.

Dr. James A. Gross, owner of the horse, Alpine Boy, said today he had ordered the animal killed by a veterinarian at Kingsville. The vet reported Alpine Boy was destroyed last Thursday night.

Alpine Boy crashed through the inside rail at Cumberland race track, July 24, fatally injuring Jockey Benny Leggett, 22. The Maryland Race Commission barred the horse after testimony that he could hardly see, but absolved all concerned of any blame.

Dr. Gross said he planned originally to put Alpine Boy out to pasture. But later decided to have him destroyed when the horse couldn't see well enough even to feed.

The Racing Commission hearing produced testimony that Alpine Boy had been barred earlier from racing at Charles Town, W. Va., because of defective vision.

Movie Producer Says Films Prove Judges Correct In Olympic Ruling

Ewell Was Disqualified For Stepping Over Line

LONDON, Aug. 9 (INS)—Olympic officials were marking time tonight on the dispute over disqualification of the winning American 400 meter sprint relay team on Saturday.

Castleton Knight, British producer of the official Olympic movies, said slow-motion films of the event indicate the judges were correct in disqualifying the United States quartet.

The first American runner allegedly passed the baton to the number two man beyond the exchange zone.

Knight said:

"An examination of the film shows the second man at least a yard over the line, as far as a layman can see."

John McGovern, counsellor for the United States Olympic Committee, said American officials are not pushing a protest. He explained:

"Officials now are searching for any official or casual picture which may throw light on the subject. Until such evidence is found, it is probable the whole matter will be left in abeyance, and the existing award to the British relay team will be allowed to stand."

The matter now is up to the seven-man appeal jury headed by David Lord Burghley. The jury can overrule the track and field judges but was vague tonight as to when, if ever, it will get around to deciding whether the judges' ruling should be altered.

McGinnis Defeats Allen in Mt. Lake Tourney

John H. Curtiss of Washington, winner of the last three tourneys, is again a tourney favorite. Mrs. Elizabeth H. Smith of Wheeling, W. Va., will be defending the women's title.

Lloyd Mangrum Edges Snead For $10,000 In Golf Playoff

Beats Sammy By Stroke Earns $22,500 In Week

By CHARLES EINSTEIN
International News Service Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (INS) — All-American Champion Lloyd Mangrum completed the richest double-slam in golfing history today when he came from behind in approved thriller fashion to nip Sam Snead for the $10,000 so-called "world's championship."

Dutch Harrison also participated in the three-man playoff viewed by 10,000 enthusiasts, said to comprise the largest assembly ever to follow a single golfing match.

Mangrum, who had birdie-par for the last two holes to Snead's par bogey, emerged with the medal card of 70 strokes, two below par for Tam O'Shanter's extended fairways. Snead had 71 and Harrison had 73.

Mangrum Earns $22,500

Thus ended seven days of golf at George May's Tam O'Shanter ccurse, and Mangrum's one-man gold rush. His prize-money total, in winning the All-American Friday and the "world's championship" today, zoomed to the happy tune of $22,500.

As winner of the All-American, Mangrum collected $5,000. As so-called home professional at Tam O'Shanter, he collected an extra $5,000 from May for being the leading money-winner on the circuit.

For breaking the course record with a nine-under-par yesterday, to tie Harrison and Snead at 135 for the 36-hole "world's championship," the dapper Texan pulled down a bonus of $2,500. And today's $10,000 plum was winner-take-all.

To top it all, Mangrum won an extra side bet of $1,000 from sponsor May by winning today. However, neither that nor today's $10,000 nor any bonus awards counted in Mangrum's P.G.A. money-winning score, which remains at $25,944. The "world's championship" is not counted because it is an invitational tourney.

The apt mountaineer from West Virginia, who missed one U. S. open title by taking an 8 on the final hole and another by missing a 30-inch putt, led the way today through the 13th hole, where a second successive bogey on his part enabled Mangrum to draw even.

Snead dropped a five-footer for a birdie 4 on the 15th to regain a one-stroke edge, but Mangrum duplicated the feat on the 17th to even things coming up on 18.

Snead Wastes Shot

At this juncture Snead chose to exhibit the original collapsible game of golf which many say he both originated and patented. Specifically, he put his drive smack behind a tree to the right of the fairway and had to waste a shot getting back.

The rest was very methodical. Mangrum on in two, brushed his first putt to within inches of home, then holed out for his par. Snead, needing a 25-footer for his par, rolled past by two feet.

Harrison, who had a tidy 64 yesterday, went two strokes over par on the very first hole when he took a 6. He got back by birds on five and six, but hit spectators with his shots both on the eighth and ninth, and was forced to accept bogeys on both of these holes.

The cards:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Out | 453 | 444 | 435—36 |
| Mangrum out | 462 | 444 | 435—36 |
| Snead out | 343 | 544 | 434—34 |

America's Cage Team Trounces Uruguay, 63-28

U. S. To Play Mexico In Semi-Final Round

By BOB CONSIDINE
International News Service Sports Writer

LONDON, Aug. 9 (INS)—America's flashy, favored basketball team turned on the power tonight to smash outclassed Uruguay, 63 to 28, and advance into the semi-finals of the Olympic basketball competition.

Ralph Beard

The U. S. quintet will face the Mexican entry in the semis, in what is expected to be an exciting duel. America will be favored.

Mexico exhibited speed and defensive finesse in winning her quarter-finals match from stubborn Korea, 43 to 32.

France's basketeers prevented a fourth "new world" entry from gaining the semi-finals by whipping Chile 53 to 52 in an overtime thriller. Chile forged a 25 to 18 lead at halftime and nursed a two-point advantage just before the final buzzer.

rance Edges Chile

France tied the game, 50 to 50, with seconds to go, and then notched her one-point triumph.

Brazil became the third Western Hemisphere country to gain the semi-finals by defeating a resourceful Czechoslovakian quintet, 28 to 23.

The South Americans will be favored over France in their semi-finals game.

The Uruguayan team, which, prior to the match issued a "we don't fear the Americans" Dictum, never was in the ball game. The American defenses, sluggish in spots in the preliminary rounds, were superb today. The South Americans weaved and "cut" continuously, but they still couldn't break through.

Beard Is Brilliant

Ralph Beard, Kentucky's live-wire All-American, was brilliant on both defense and offense, particularly the latter. The bluegrass lightning boy led fast-break sorties all evening in a dazzling exhibition of passing and drive that left both Uruguay and the spectators gasping.

But Browning, America's head basketball coach, refused to crow over the one-sided triumph, in which the U. S. compiled a 31 to 17 half-time lead. Browning said:

"We took them seriously. They are a good team."

The Uruguayan coach, Cieslimkas, obviously was awed by America's finesse. He said:

"We did our utmost to make the victory margin as narrow as possible. It has been an honor to play against such a superb team."

SQUIRREL HUNTING SEASON TO REMAIN SAME AS LAST YEAR

Maryland's squirrel hunting season will open September 15 and close September 30, Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, announced last night.

The season for hunting squirrels will be the same as in 1947 in that this species of game cannot be taken during the regular upland season which gets under way November 15 and ends December 31. No small game can be taken during the deer season December 6 to 11, inclusive.

Cumberland P.E. Tossers Wallop Winchester, 31-8

Joe Garlitz Hits Two Homers In 2nd Victory

Cumberland made it two straight in the Potomac Edison Company's Inter-District Softball Tournament by swamping Winchester, Va., yesterday at Romney, W. Va., by the score of 31 to 8. The game was limited to six innings.

The winners hammered two Winchester pitchers for 27 hits and scored 21 runs in the second inning during which Joe Garlitz hit two homers and a double in three trips to the plate and Joe Buday also hit for the circuit. Garlitz's first four-bagger came with the bases loaded and there were two aboard when he teed off the second time. The three homers accounted for eight tallies during the explosive second frame.

In addition to his four-master, Buday smacked out a pair of singles. Kemp belted two doubles and a single and Cook collected a double and two one-base knocks.

Last week Cumberland opened the inter-district series with a 10-7 victory over Romney.

Martinsburg, W. Va., will be Cumberland's next opponent and the winner of this game is expected to play the finalist in the Hagerstown-Frederick tourney for the P. E. system softball championship.

Yesterday's score:

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| CUMBERLAND | 4(21)0 | 204 | 31 | 27 | 0 |

England Noses Out U. S. In Regattas, 25 To 24

By BOB CONSIDINE
International News Service Sports Writer

HENLEY - ON - THAMES, Eng., Aug. 9. (INS)—Eight giants from the University of California swept like a golden arrow down the middle of the placid Thames today to trounce Britain and Norway in the finals of the eight-oared shell competition.

The triumph of the bolt upright California oarsmen over the splashing, sway-backed Cambridge crew, which represented England, climaxed a brilliant day of finals which also saw a splendid makeshift University of Washington four with coxswain defeat Switzerland and Denmark.

Yale Four Is Third

The coxswainless Yale four, the third American boat in the seven finals, finished third and last to Italy and Denmark, after nearly being fouled by the wandering Danish shell.

It was a day well begun and well finished, as austere mother England kicked up her heels in the brilliant sunlight with a waving of pennants and day-long festivities in this Elizabethan town—which has been the home of such racing since 1839.

England won two firsts and a second to take regatta honors with 25 points. The United States—with two firsts and a third — had 24 points.

Italy, which won one race, scored 23 points.

Australian Triumphs

Australia scored a resounding triumph in the single sculls, won by Mervyn Wood, who earlier in the year won the Diamond Sculls on the same course.

Wood, a business man, and father of two children, beat Eduardo Risso, Uruguayan bicycle store manager, who eliminated America's John Kelly, Jr., on Saturday. Third and last was Romolo Catasta, an Italian doctor of political science.

Britain Wins Double Sculls

Britain defeated Denmark and Uruguay in the double sculls, Denmark defeated Italy and Hungary in the pairs with coxswain, and Britain defeated Switzerland and Italy in the pairs without coxswain.

The feature of the day, though, was the victory scored by the great California eight, commanded by brilliant little coxswain Ralph Purchase, of Portland, Ore., and stroked by rippling-muscled Ian Turner, of Oakland, Cal.

The Americans—perpetuating an unbroken victory surge which started in 1920 when our eights participated in the Olympic rowing for the first time—won by 2½ lengths over Britain in five minutes, 56.7. The time was excellent considering the strong current against which they rowed.

Better Than 1932 Crew

British coach Harold Rickett characterized the Americans as "a great crew—better than the one I rowed against in 1932."

Britain, pulling along at a 47-stroke beat, led for the first 750 yards today, but the Americans drew abreast at that point, and quickly moved on to a half-length edge.

The California boat, made up entirely of Californians, included Dave Turner, Jim Hardy, George Ahlgren, Lloyd Butler, Dave Brown, Justus Smith and John Stack—besides stroke Turner and coxswain Purchase.

The victorious Washington four-oared shell with coxswain was made up of the stern four from the University of Washington junior varsity eight and got a tremendous kick out of victory.

Makeshift Outfit Scores

This makeshift outfit—Gordon Giovanelli, Robert Will, Robert Martin, Warren Westlund and coxswain Al Morgan—has been setting the rowing world on its ears since being brought together. These boys broke the world record in Olympic tryouts before sailing for England.

The Yale crew, which represented America in the four without coxswain race, got a bad break in their event when the Danish team wandered off the course and nearly collided with the American boat.

The victorious Italian boat, made up of workers in a motorcycle factory at Lake Como, won in six minutes, 39 seconds. The second place Danes were slightly more than four seconds behind and the Yale boat a couple of good pulls still farther back.

The Yale boat was manned by John Kingsbury, of Herden, Conn.; Stuart Griffin, of Milford, Conn.; Gregory Gates, of Montclair, N. J., and Bob Perew, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Coach Al Walz, of Yale, said after the race that his boys got all the worst of it from the breaks including being forced to row in the wake of the meandering Danish boat.

Victors Duck Coxswain

The staid British were amazed and a little startled when after the last race of the day, the big Californians grabbed coxswain Purchase of the eight-oared shell and threw him into the Thames in keeping with time-honored American custom.

City League's All-Stars Win Series Opener

5-Run Rally In Sixth Sinks County Team, 5-2

Bobby Miller of Hyndman was on his way to Softball's Hall of Fame yesterday but he ran into a detour in the 6th inning when a five-run rally enabled the City Softball League All-Stars to come from behind and defeat the County Softball League All-Stars in the opening game of a benefit series at Community Park. The score was 5-2.

Up to the explosive 6th, Miller had pitched no-run, no-hit ball and was out in front by the score of 2-0 when four hits, including two doubles, coupled with an error and field's choice enabled the City Leaguers to sew up the game.

Orndorff Starts Rally

Ed Decker struck out to open the inning and William "Bee" Orndorff started the fireworks with a two-bagger. Doyle George was safe on an error. Then Vernon Penner smacked a single to send Orndorff home. Lou Riehl doubled to score George and Penner counted on "Red" Whitman's fielder's choice. "Pete" Elliott climaxed the big rally with a timely two-bagger that scored Riehl and Whitman.

The four hits yielded by Miller were packed into that one big inning. Ed Decker, who went the route for the City Leaguers gave up six hits, two of which were credited to Ken Troutman, of the Narrows Park Cardinals. Decker fanned four and Miller whiffed one.

Score Two Unearned Runs

In the fourth inning the County League team scored its two unearned runs after two out. An error, wild throw and singles by Troutman and Wertz produced the tallies.

Frank Riehl of the Amvets and "Moose" Crabtree directed the play of the City Leaguers.

The game netted gate receipts of $137 which will go toward the injured players' fund in both circuits. The teams will split the receipts 60 per cent to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser at the conclusion of the three-game series.

Play Again Tomorrow

Tomorrow the teams will clash at 6:15 p. m. at the Hyndman Baseball Park. The site for the third game on Friday will be determined by the flip of a coin. Score.

At least four gunners of the tri-state area expect to compete in the Grand American Handicap, the blue ribbon event of trapshooting, to be held at Vandalia, Ohio, Friday, August 27.

Here's a sport that has been carried on for 47 years and believe it, or not, nobody has ever won the top cash award more than once.

The Grand American Handicap is a 100-target event and the contestants shoot from the 16 to 25 yard line, depending on their handicap. A $10,000 purse is guaranteed regardless of the number of shooters participating.

Last year there were a total of 2,700 entries and the surplus boosted the prize money to $21,203. The winner received $1,500, runner-up $1,000 and third place finisher $400. Close to 200 gunners shared the cash awards.

Among the scatter gun artists planning to take a shot at this dough are Arthur P. Hoffa, mayor of Barton; John Lighter and Russell McElfish of Cumberland and John Barton, dairyman and moose hunter from Pinto, Md. Ed McDonald, of Headsville, W. Va., who has shot at numerous Grand American events is also expected to be on hand when the firing gets under way in Ohio.

The last time anyone from this section crashed the spotlight at Vandalia, Ohio, was in 1941 when Mrs. John "Bunny" Sanders of Keyser, won the Champion of Champions race for women with a score of 98 out of 100.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanders won the husband and wife championship twice at the national shoot. In 1939 they broke 382 out of 400 to bag the title and in 1938 they smashed 191 out of 200 to annex the crown.

Local gunners who were among the 94 in the big handicap shoot at Ruffsdale, Pa., last week marveled at the exhibition staged there by Joe Heistand, Hillsboro, Ohio, gunner who has been winning trapshooting titles since 1935.

Heistand was even shooting 'em from the hip at Ruffsdale and broke 89 out of 100 from 25 yards.

We last saw Joe perform in 1936 in the Eastern Zone Shoot at the Meadow Lark Gun Club, Keyser, and he was really bustin' targets that afternoon.

In 1938 at Vandalia, Heistand broke 966 consecutive targets from 18 yards during the tourney to establish a world's record. He had a perfect score in every event but failed to win some of the events in the shoot-off of ties which did not count the scoring.

Last year Heistand broke 100 straight to win the Champion of Champions race at Vandalia then took the National Amateur at Travers Island, N. Y., with 197 out of 200.

The new mentor is Thomas G. Glass, Frederick attorney, who will tutor the Cadets on a part-time basis. He will continue to practice law.

A native of Marlin, Texas, Glass quarterbacked Tulane in 1939, 1940 and 1941, playing in the Sugar Bowl game of 1940 in which the Green Wave lost a 14-13 heartbreaker to Texas A. & M., before 73,000, one of the largest crowds ever to witness a grid game in Dixie.

That 1939 Tulane team, incidentally, was hailed by experts as the "powerhouse" team of all-time in Dixie. It won eight and tied one, rolled up 198 points to 46 for the opposition and numbered among its victims were Fordham, Columbia, Alabama and Mississippi.

Last year Glass scouted for the Buffalo Bills of the All-America Football Conference. At Frederick he succeeds Mike Hardy whose contract was not renewed.

Frederick has played Beall High for the past two years and will likely appear on the Mountain City eleven's schedule this fall.

Dismissal of James Anthony "Rip" Collins as manager of the San Diego (Cal.) Padres the other day brought back memories of the days when the "Ripper" was a member of the great Johnstown (Pa.) team that won the first Middle Atlantic League pennant in 1925.

Joe Cronin, Mike Martineck, Jose Olivares, Eddie Montague, Nat Hickey, Grover Hinebaugh, Dick Vassey, Norman McNeill, "Lefty" Schmutte and Jack Matthews were also members of that classy aggregation.

Since playing for the Johnnies in 1925 and 1926 when he hit .327 and .313, Collins has covered quite a bit of ground. He graduated from the Rochester Red Wings to the St. Louis Cardinals and played with the "Gas House Gang" from 1931 through 1936. Four of the six years he was with the Cards he hit above .300. His greatest year was 1934 when he batted .333 and finished fourth in the National League. Paul Waner was the leader that season. "Rip" also hit 35 circuit drives to tie Mel Ott for home run honors in 1934.

In 1937 and 1938 Collins played with the Chicago Cubs.

During his eight years' stay in the majors "Rip" belted 135 home runs.

He has been associated with minor and major league teams as player and manager since 1923—a total of 25 years.

ALPINE BOY, WHICH CAUSED JOCKEY'S DEATH, DESTROYED

JARRETTSVILLE, Md., Aug. 9 (AP) — A 12-year-old blind gelding which ran into a rail at Cumberland and caused the death of a jockey has been destroyed.

Dr. James A. Gross, owner of the horse, Alpine Boy, said today he had ordered the animal killed by a veterinarian at Kingsville. The vet reported Alpine Boy was destroyed last Thursday night.

Alpine Boy crashed through the inside rail at Cumberland race track, July 24, fatally injuring Jockey Benny Leggett, 22. The Maryland Race Commission barred the horse after testimony that he could hardly see, but absolved all concerned of any blame.

Dr. Gross said he planned originally to put Alpine Boy out to pasture. But later decided to have him destroyed when the horse couldn't see well enough even to feed.

The Racing Commission hearing produced testimony that Alpine Boy had been barred earlier from racing at Charles Town, W. Va., because of defective vision.

Movie Producer Says Films Prove Judges Correct In Olympic Ruling

Ewell Was Disqualified For Stepping Over Line

LONDON, Aug. 9 (INS)—Olympic officials were marking time tonight on the dispute over disqualification of the winning American 400 meter sprint relay team on Saturday.

Castleton Knight, British producer of the official Olympic movies, said slow-motion films of the event indicate the judges were correct in disqualifying the United States quartet.

The first American runner allegedly passed the baton to the number two man beyond the exchange zone.

Knight said:

John McGovern, counsellor for the United States Olympic Committee, said American officials are not pushing a protest. He explained:

"Officials now are searching for any official or casual picture which may throw light on the subject. Until such evidence is found, it is probable the whole matter will be left in abeyance, and the existing award to the British relay team will be allowed to stand."

The matter now is up to the seven-man appeal jury headed by David Lord Burghley. The jury can overrule the track and field judges but was vague tonight as to when, if ever, it will get around to deciding whether the judges' ruling should be altered.

A Good Threshing

OLSZTYN, Poland (AP) — The director of the government's agricultural machinery plant at Dobre Miasto, near this former East Prussian city, claims to have invented a new type of grain-saving threshing machine. A government announcement said the machine operated with a loss of only 0.5 percent grain, compared with 2 to 3 percent loss by other machines.

For Stocks All But As Demand Price Level Drops Disappears

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP)—Demand for stocks approached the vanishing point in today's market. Prices declined fractions to an extreme of two points or so in one of the slowest sessions of the year.

Key issues marked down incuded United States Steel at 78¼, Youngstown Sheet 80¾, General Motors 64⅛, United States Rubber 45½, J. I. Case 42½, American Telephone 152¾, Kennecott Copper 57⅛, Westinghouse Electric 28⅜, du Pont 175⅜, Santa Fe 112¼, Southern Pacific 55½, Union Pacific 89, Eastman Kodak 41⅜.

Among a handful of gainers were Allied Chemical, United Aircraft, American Tobacco, Dow Chemical and Felt and Tarr Manufacturing.

Volume on the stock exchange totaled 670,000 shares, the smallest since 660,000 changed hands on March 9. This compared with only 0,000 shares Friday.

The volume reached $2,345,000, a bit under last Friday's $2,690,000 and an even smaller amount above the previous low of $2,310,000 last August 22.

Radio In Review

By JOHN CROSBY

Some Notes On Private Detectives

Philo Vance, the brains trust invented by S. S. Van Dine, now has a secretary, a flippant, hard-boiled girl, just like all the other secretaries to private detectives in radio. The Philo Vance I used to know in fiction wouldn't tolerate her for a minute, but the radio version of Philo (Mutual, 10 p. m. EST Mondays) is quite a different proposition.

John Crosby

Philo used to be quite an intellectual and bon vivant. In the radio version he's just another smoothie with an eye for the ladies and a collection of wisecracks that would make the late author spin in his grave. I don't know why they insist on desecrating well known fictional characters this way. Maybe a union rule among radio's private eyes regarding hiring these girls. I expect Sherlock Holmes will have to fire faithful old Watson one of these days and employ one of these flippant babes to hand him the needle. Holmes will also have to learn the language, will have to master the art of snarling out of the corner of his mouth: "You'll burn for this, Moriarity."

When that day comes, I won't answer for the safety of the cast. Sherlock Holmes' fans everywhere will hie themselves to the nearest gunsmiths and then descend on the studios.

This profanation of well known literary works is not confined entirely to mystery yarns. Some time ago on the "Romance" program I heard a version of Rudyard Kipling's "The Light That Failed" in which that great story was coated heavily with sugar, or, as they call it in radio, romance. Instead of dying with a bullet through his brain, as in the novel, the artist hero wound up in the girl's arms, gibbering about love, love, love. It was enough to whiten the hair of a Kipling man.

"The Lone Wolf" (Mutual 9:30 p. m. E.D.T. Tuesdays) is another wisecracking bachelor who solves crimes for no apparent reason and who is irresistible to women, particularly bad ones. In a recent episode, the girl was Sandra, and a bum if ever I heard one. In the end she was asking him to take her to dinner and he played with this notion in arch tones that suggested he was interested in more than food.

Seems to me this sort of coy suggestiveness is approaching sex on tiptoes in much the same way the novelist once used asterisks. About the only other thing you need know about this wolf is that his program is usually studded with bodies and there are more than the usual number of suspects.

"The Falcon" (Mutual, 8 p. m. E.D.T. Mondays) is a distant cousin of the Lone Wolf. The only difference between the two, as near as I can see, is the fact that the Falcon appears to devastate repressed women, rather than just bad ones. This is adventure without mystery, or with only a minimum of it, but there is a good deal of gore, a lot of very tough talk, much of it emitting from the side of the mouth, and some painful overacting. Inevitably, at the end, there is a long explanation from the Falcon as to how he figured all this out, that I find superfluous, since I generally have it figured out way ahead of the Falcon.

However, I'm indebted to the Falcon for adding a nugget to my collection of understatements. "No, he says, but yes I say," one of the characters declared. "You've got to listen to me." What this character was objecting to in the mildest possible way was being killed. Oh, well, I suppose in the make-believe world of murder mysteries death is so commonplace as to be regarded as a minor inconvenience, no worse than a bad cold.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Good Threshing

OLSZTYN, Poland (AP) — The director of the government's agricultural machinery plant at Dobre Miasto, near this former East Prussian city, claims to have invented a new type of grain-saving threshing machine. A government announcement said the machine operated with a loss of only 0.5 percent grain, compared with 2 to 3 percent loss by other machines.

For Stocks All But As Demand Price Level Drops Disappears

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP)—Demand for stocks approached the vanishing point in today's market. Prices declined fractions to an extreme of two points or so in one of the slowest sessions of the year.

Selling never amounted to much but it was enough to force the price level down for the largest overall loss in about a week.

Key issues marked down incuded United States Steel at 78¼, Youngstown Sheet 80⅜, General Motors 64⅛, United States Rubber 45½, J. I. Case 42½, American Telephone 152¾, Kennecott Copper 57⅛, Westinghouse Electric 28⅜, du Pont 175⅜, Santa Fe 112¼, Southern Pacific 55½, Union Pacific 89, Eastman Kodak 41⅜.

Among a handful of gainers were Allied Chemical, United Aircraft, American Tobacco, Dow Chemical and Felt and Tarr Manufacturing.

Volume on the stock exchange totaled 670,000 shares, the smallest since 660,000 changed hands on March 9. This compared with only [illegible],000 shares Friday.

The volume reached $2,345,000, a bit under last Friday's $2,690,000 and an even smaller amount above the previous low of $2,310,000 last August 22.

Radio In Review

Some Notes On Private Detectives

Philo Vance, the brains trust invented by S. S. Van Dine, now has a secretary, a flippant, hard-boiled girl, just like all the other secretaries to private detectives in radio. The Philo Vance I used to know in fiction wouldn't tolerate her for a minute, but the radio version of Philo (Mutual, 10 p. m. EST Mondays) is quite a different proposition.

John Crosby

Philo used to be quite an intellectual and bon vivant. In the radio version he's just another smoothie with an eye for the ladies and a collection of wisecracks that would make the late author spin in his grave. I don't know why they insist on desecrating well known fictional characters this way. Maybe a union rule among radio's private eyes regarding hiring these girls. I expect Sherlock Holmes will have to fire faithful old Watson one of these days and employ one of these flippant babes to hand him the needle. Holmes will also have to learn the language, will have to master the art of snarling out of the corner of his mouth: "You'll burn for this, Moriarity."

When that day comes, I won't answer for the safety of the cast. Sherlock Holmes' fans everywhere will hie themselves to the nearest gunsmiths and then descend on the studios.

This profanation of well known literary works is not confined entirely to mystery yarns. Some time ago on the "Romance" program I heard a version of Rudyard Kipling's "The Light That Failed" in which that great story was coated heavily with sugar, or, as they call it in radio, romance. Instead of dying with a bullet through his brain, as in the novel, the artist hero wound up in the girl's arms, gibbering about love, love, love. It was enough to whiten the hair of a Kipling man.

"The Lone Wolf" (Mutual 9:30 p. m. E.D.T. Tuesdays) is another wisecracking bachelor who solves crimes for no apparent reason and who is irresistible to women, particularly bad ones. In a recent episode, the girl was Sandra, and a bum if ever I heard one. In the end she was asking him to take her to dinner and he played with this notion in arch tones that suggested he was interested in more than food.

Seems to me this sort of coy suggestiveness is approaching sex on tiptoes in much the same way the novelist once used asterisks. About the only other thing you need know about this wolf is that his program is usually studded with bodies and there are more than the usual number of suspects.

"The Falcon" (Mutual, 8 p. m. E.D.T. Mondays) is a distant cousin of the Lone Wolf. The only difference between the two, as near as I can see, is the fact that the Falcon appears to devastate repressed women, rather than just bad ones. This is adventure without mystery, or with only a minimum of it, but there is a good deal of gore, a lot of very tough talk, much of it emitting from the side of the mouth, and some painful overacting. Inevitably, at the end, there is a long explanation from the Falcon as to how he figured all this out, that I find superfluous, since I generally have it figured out way ahead of the Falcon.

However, I'm indebted to the Falcon for adding a nugget to my collection of understatements. "No, he says, but yes I say," one of the characters declared. "You've got to listen to me." What this character was objecting to in the mildest possible way was being killed. Oh, well, I suppose in the make-believe world of murder mysteries death is so commonplace as to be regarded as a minor inconvenience, no worse than a bad cold.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Tax Rates Show Sharp Decrease

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—The assessed valuation of Hardy County increased nearly a half a million dollars during the year with a total of $9,540,445 on all classes of property. This figure compares with $9,069,180 in 1947.

The Town of Moorefield jumped to $2,122,445 on all classes of property from $2,005,970 in 1947. The Town of Wardensville advanced in assessed valuation only $2,785 to a total of $225,125 as compared with $222,440 in 1947.

Tax rates dropped sharply for Hardy County, and for the Town of Moorefield and remained the same for the Board of Education and the Town of Wardensville.

The rates per $100 for Class IV property in the cuonty dropped from 56.4c in 1947 to 37.6c this year. The rates in Moorefield on Class IV property per $100 dropped from 56c to 38c. The rates for the Board of Education remained at 84.4c per $100 on Class IV property and the rate of 50c per $100 on Class IV property remained the same for the Town of Wardensville.

Hardy County's Assessed Value Goes Up $500,000

Tax Rates Show Sharp Decrease

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—The assessed valuation of Hardy County increased nearly a half a million dollars during the year with a total of $9,540,445 on all classes of property. This figure compares with $9,069,180 in 1947.

The Town of Moorefield jumped to $2,122,445 on all classes of property from $2,005,970 in 1947. The Town of Wardensville advanced in assessed valuation only $2,785 to a total of $225,125 as compared with $222,440 in 1947.

Tax rates dropped sharply for Hardy County, and for the Town of Moorefield and remained the same for the Board of Education and the Town of Wardensville.

The rates per $100 for Class IV property in the cuonty dropped from 56.4c in 1947 to 37.6c this year. The rates in Moorefield on Class IV property per $100 dropped from 56c to 38c. The rates for the Board of Education remained at 84.4c per $100 on Class IV property and the rate of 50c per $100 on Class IV property remained the same for the Town of Wardensville.

Tax rates in the county were reduced because of a cash surplus in the county treasury. Tax rates in the Town of Moorefield were reduced due to additional income in the town treasury. Moorefield now receives a two per cent sales tax revenue from the State Whiskey Store and also receives an income from the parking meters on Main Street.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 9 (AP)—Teachers over 65 years of age will not be employed in the Berkeley County school system after July 1, 1949, county schools superintendent G. William Ropp announced.

He said the new ruling is, in effect, a one-year notice to teachers that those over 65 will not be re-employed next year.

Ropp said state laws provide that teachers shall retire at the age of 65. He said during the war years county boards were permitted to hire the older teachers because of a teacher shortage.

RHEUMATISM YIELDS TO SPECIALIZED SYSTEM OF TREATMENT

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. — Aug. 9—So successful has a specialized system proven for treating rheumatism and arthritis that an amazing new book will be sent free to any reader of this paper who will write for it.

The book entitled, "Rheumatism," fully explains why drugs and medicines give only temporary relief and fail to remove the causes of the trouble.

The Ball Clinic, Excelsior Springs, Mo., has perfected a specialized system of treatment for rheumatism and arthritis combined with the world famous mineral waters and baths. This new system of treatment is fully described in the book and tells how it may be possible for you to find freedom from rheumatism.

You incur no obligation in sending for this instructive book. It may be the means of saving you years of untold misery. For writing promptly, the Clinic will send their newly combined book entitled, "Rheumatism—Good Health, Life's Greatest Blessing." Address your letter to The Ball Clinic, Dept. 3502, Excelsior Springs, Missouri, but, be sure to write today.

In Memoriam

This world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one I loved

Sadly missed by his grandmother,
Mrs. Ralph Shuck.

Card of Thanks

The family of Mrs. Theodora Shaffer wish to thank their friends who donated their cars and extended their sympathy at the time of the death of their beloved wife and mother.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my grandson, Sgt. James Donald Kenney, who lost his life while serving his country, August 9, 1943.

This world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one I loved
From memory pass away.

Sadly missed by his grandmother,
Mrs. Ralph Shuck.

Breakneck Road Project Finished

County road workers have completed improvement of 1.7 miles of Breakneck Road, according to J. J. Smith, county engineer, who supervised the job.

Breakneck Road extends from U. S. Route 40 at the foot of Martin's Mountain about eight miles east of Cumberland, and continues for three and one-half miles to intersect Murley's and Williams Road.

Completion of the project provides an improved road short cut from Route 40 to the Murley's Branch valley and Town Creek, county officials claim.

Council Approves Aerial Fire Truck

The Mayor and Council yesterday approved purchase of an 85-foot tractor-drawn aerial fire truck from the Seagrave Corporation, Akron, Ohio, at an estimated cost of $32,000.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan, who inspected equipment in other cities recently, said he is "confident we have the best money can buy."

The municipal body also appointed William J. Edwards, commissioner of light and water, as temporary mayor effective next Monday in the absence of Mayor Thomas S. Post, who will attend a meeting of state mayors at the University of Maryland.

James M. Conway, city tax collector, reported $638,552.91, in taxes collected during July.

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, health officer, reported 20 communicable diseases were treated by the Health Department in July. Vital statistics included 168 birth for July, 45 deaths and three stillbirths.

Two Turnpike Mishaps Noted

Pennsylvania State Police at Bedford, Pa., yesterday reported two weekend accidents on the Pennsylvania Turnpike near Bedford.

Officers reported that a car driven by William Brown, 34, Clarksville, Pa., struck a car operated by Phillip G. Randa, 38, Pittsburgh Sunday.

Police said Randa's car was parked in Sideling Hill Tunnel when the accident occurred. Damage to Brown's car was estimated at $125, and to Randa's, $40.

At 9:20 p. m. near the Tuscarora Tunnel, a car operated by Gertrude Zwidel, 39, 216 South Main Street, Greensburg, Pa., was "practically demolished" when the driver lost control while attempting to pass another vehicle, police said.

Army Needs More In Nurse Corps

The United States Army has 1,500 fewer nurses than it needs at present and 3,400 fewer than it will need by June 30, 1949, the Surgeon General's Office has estimated.

M. Sgt. William Rogers, in charge of the local Organized Reserve, says that both civilian and Army nurses have been asked to join the Army Reserve Corps.

The Surgeon General's Office is preparing questionnaires to be mailed to holders of reserve commissions asking them if they would accept active duty for one, two or three years.

Youths Sentenced For False Alarm

Two local boys were sentenced to Maryland Training School for Boys until they are 18 years old at a trial yesterday morning in Juvenile Court. The boys admitted sending in a false fire alarm and violating paroles, authorities reported.

The youths, one 15 and the other 17, were arrested Sunday morning at the home of Mrs. Marie Miller, 101 Potomac Street. With them was a 14-year-old girl, according to Lt. James E. Van, who investigated.

Police said a Mrs. Brown complained that two young men and two young women walked up Humbird Street, threw a fusee into her yard, and then pulled the alarm on the corner.

One of the boys had been paroled for participation in the theft of $400 from Reynolds and Mendenhall's Tobacco Store, South Centre Street, and for the destruction of construction equipment. The other youth was also on parole for a previous offense, Lt. Van said.

The girl was given a suspended sentence in Montrose School for Girls, and was released in the custody of her parents.

Police Hunt Pair Who Robbed Soldier

City and State Police last night were searching for two men who are said to have attacked and robbed a hitchhiking soldier yesterday morning on Route 40 east of the city.

John R. Keckler, Hagerstown, driver for the Blue Ridge Lines, found the soldier, Ernest DeForest, 24, Munsie, Ind., lying along the highway at 4:15 a. m. and took him to Allegany Hospital, where he was admitted for treatment of a lacerated scalp and possible head injuries.

DeForest told Lt. James E. Van, who investigated, that he was hitchhiking to Fort Belvoir, Va., from his home when a car stopped to pick him up.

The two occupants of the car told the soldier, who was standing by the car door, that they would give him a ride if he could help to purchase gasoline.

Frostburg Jaycees

The letter, signed by Charles L. Briner, president, Newton A. Coplin, vice president, and Irvin Field, W. W. Close, A. G. Gortner, W. O. Davis and Emeric Dusic, directors, follows:

"I am indeed sorry that the issue of unfair tactics as well as other issues have been made concerning your Miss Maryland pageant. We, the Mountain Top Chamber of Commerce, wish to make the following statements to you, Miss Lookabaugh and the Cumberland papers:

"1—Although 'reports' of giving Miss Lookabaugh more time and training than the other contestants were made to us, we feel that the contest was operated and placed before the public as fairly as could be.

"2—The Frostburg Junior Association of Commerce statement printed in The Cumberland Times of August 4, which stated Oakland would not enter another contestant in a Miss Maryland pageant as long as it is conducted in this manner is erroneous. We have never made such a statement nor will we unless definite proof is given that there had been foul play.

"3—We wish to extend our best wishes to Miss Lookabaugh in the Atlantic City finals. May she win and become Miss America.

"Finally, our contestant, Miss Molly Smart, has made us very proud and we are glad to have had the opportunity of sponsoring a girl of her high calibre representing our community. Perhaps next year our contestant will be Miss Maryland."

Mayor Asks PE For Meeting To Discuss Fly Ash

With authorization of the City Council, Mayor Thomas S. Post yesterday wrote R. Paul Smith, Potomac Edison Company president, asking for a meeting to discuss fly ash conditions caused by the PE River Plant here.

Mayor Post informed Smith that he was authorized by the municipal body to request a meeting with the PE president or other company officials "who have authority" to act.

The conference would deal with ways and means by which the fly ash condition can be corrected, Mayor Post explained. Adding that complaints are increasing.

The situation has reached a point where some definite and early action on the part of the Potomac Edison Company is required, Mayor Post wrote Smith, adding "I have examined the situation and know how serious it is.

The letter written by Post resulted from a suggestion by Commissioner William H. Buchholtz at the Mayor and Council meeting yesterday morning "that someone with authority to act for Potomac Edison be asked to meet with the council."

Yesterday's discussion at the municipal meeting resulted from a letter submitted by James Alfred Avirett

Breakneck Road Project Finished

County road workers have completed improvement of 1.7 miles of Breakneck Road, according to J. J. Smith, county engineer, who supervised the job.

Breakneck Road extends from U. S. Route 40 at the foot of Martin's Mountain about eight miles east of Cumberland, and continues for three and one-half miles to intersect Murley's and Williams Road.

Completion of the project provides an improved road short cut from Route 40 to the Murley's Branch valley and Town Creek, county officials claim.

The municipal body also appointed William J. Edwards, commissioner of light and water, as temporary mayor effective next Monday in the absence of Mayor Thomas S. Post, who will attend a meeting of state mayors at the University of Maryland.

Requests by Thomas L. Popp, 231 North Lee Street, and an unidentified resident at 634 Fairview Avenue for sewer line installations were referred to the city engineer.

Two Turnpike Mishaps Noted

Pennsylvania State Police at Bedford, Pa., yesterday reported two weekend accidents on the Pennsylvania Turnpike near Bedford.

Officers reported that a car driven by William Brown, 34, Clarksville, Pa., struck a car operated by Phillip G. Randa, 38, Pittsburgh Sunday.

Police said Randa's car was parked in Sideling Hill Tunnel when the accident occurred. Damage to Brown's car was estimated at $125, and to Randa's, $40.

At 9:20 p. m. near the Tuscarora Tunnel, a car operated by Gertrude Zwidel, 39, 216 South Main Street, Greensburg, Pa., was "practically demolished" when the driver lost control while attempting to pass another vehicle, police said.

Youths Sentenced For False Alarm

Two local boys were sentenced to Maryland Training School for Boys until they are 18 years old at a trial yesterday morning in Juvenile Court. The boys admitted sending in a false fire alarm and violating paroles, authorities reported.

The youths, one 15 and the other 17, were arrested Sunday morning at the home of Mrs. Marie Miller, 101 Potomac Street. With them was a 14-year-old girl, according to Lt. James E. Van, who investigated.

Police said a Mrs. Brown complained that two young men and two young women walked up Humbird Street, threw a fusee into her yard, and then pulled the alarm on the corner.

One of the boys had been paroled for participation in the theft of $400 from Reynolds and Mendenhall's Tobacco Store, South Centre Street, and for the destruction of construction equipment. The other youth was also on parole for a previous offense, Lt. Van said.

The girl was given a suspended sentence in Montrose School for Girls, and was released in the custody of her parents.

Police Hunt Pair Who Robbed Soldier

City and State Police last night were searching for two men who are said to have attacked and robbed a hitchhiking soldier yesterday morning on Route 40 east of the city.

John R. Keckler, Hagerstown, driver for the Blue Ridge Lines, found the soldier, Ernest DeForest, 24, Munsie, Ind., lying along the highway at 4:15 a. m. and took him to Allegany Hospital, where he was admitted for treatment of a lacerated scalp and possible head injuries.

DeForest told Lt. James E. Van, who investigated, that he was hitchhiking to Fort Belvoir, Va., from his home when a car stopped to pick him up.

The two occupants of the car told the soldier, who was standing by the car door, that they would give him a ride if he could help to purchase gasoline.

The letter, signed by Charles L. Briner, president, Newton A. Coplin, vice president, and Irvin Field, W. W. Close, A. G. Gortner, W. O. Davis and Emeric Dusic, directors, follows:

"I am indeed sorry that the issue of unfair tactics as well as other issues have been made concerning your Miss Maryland pageant. We, the Mountain Top Chamber of Commerce, wish to make the following statements to you, Miss Lookabaugh and the Cumberland papers:

"1—Although 'reports' of giving Miss Lookabaugh more time and training than the other contestants were made to us, we feel that the contest was operated and placed before the public as fairly as could be.

"2—The Frostburg Junior Association of Commerce statement printed in The Cumberland Times of August 4, which stated Oakland would not enter another contestant in a Miss Maryland pageant as long as it is conducted in this manner is erroneous. We have never made such a statement nor will we unless definite proof is given that there had been foul play.

"3—We wish to extend our best wishes to Miss Lookabaugh in the Atlantic City finals. May she win and become Miss America.

"Finally, our contestant, Miss Molly Smart, has made us very proud and we are glad to have had the opportunity of sponsoring a girl of her high calibre representing our community. Perhaps next year our contestant will be Miss Maryland."

Mayor Asks PE For Meeting To Discuss Fly Ash

With authorization of the City Council, Mayor Thomas S. Post yesterday wrote R. Paul Smith, Potomac Edison Company president, asking for a meeting to discuss fly ash conditions caused by the PE River Plant here.

Mayor Post informed Smith that he was authorized by the municipal body to request a meeting with the PE president or other company officials "who have authority" to act.

The conference would deal with ways and means by which the fly ash condition can be corrected, Mayor Post explained. Adding that complaints are increasing.

The situation has reached a point where some definite and early action on the part of the Potomac Edison Company is required, Mayor Post wrote Smith, adding "I have examined the situation and know how serious it is.

The letter written by Post resulted from a suggestion by Commissioner William H. Buchholtz at the Mayor and Council meeting yesterday morning "that someone with authority to act for Potomac Edison be asked to meet with the council."

Yesterday's discussion at the municipal meeting resulted from a letter submitted by James Alfred Avirett a week earlier in which he complained about conditions in the Rose Hill Avenue section as a result of fly ash from the PE River Plant.

Avirett said his letter was addressed to the council on "behalf of 10,000 or more citizens of Cumberland who have been condemned to live in smoke, dirt, and grime."

A request of the South Cumberland Hardware Company for permission to pump water from, and otherwise clean, a 275-gallon tank on its property was granted. An agreement with Frederick A. Wempe was signed granting him the right to one sewer tap, free of charge, on Wempe Drive.

The council was advised that the Ridgeley Mayor and Council has approved resolutions concerning the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood control project.

Holden Reports Progress In Celanese Negotiations

Union Meeting Is Planned Wednesday

Representatives of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, and the Celanese Corporation of America held the first night meeting in present negotiations last night from 8 to 9:30 o'clock and a counciliator afterward reported: "Progress is being made."

However, union officials declined to comment on the two meetings yesterday, the first of which was held in the afternoon, but supposition spread that a break is expected in the contract talks before Wednesday night.

The union officials have scheduled a membership meeting for Wednesday night, and the fact that negotiation committees went into night sessions for the first time in the weeks-old talks and the conciliator's "progress" report were taken as a sign that the company and union may be close to agreement.

Cook Is Present

James A. Holden, the federal conciliator, said talks were resumed yesterday afternoon at 2 p. m. and the first session continued until 5:15 p. m.

The presence of Wesley Cook, assistant synthetic yarn director of TWUA, also added meaning to the night session. Cook's appearance at negotiations yesterday marked the first time he has participated in local negotiations for the anticipated contract since the 1947-1948 agreement expired.

Yesterday's talks were originally scheduled to get underway in the morning but were delayed when Cook did not arrive in the city until late in the morning. Holden said negotiations will continue this morning and are scheduled to start at 10 o'clock.

Besides Cook, union negotiators include James A. Dundon, and James A. Blackwell, national TWUA representatives, Playford Aldridge, president of Local 1874, and John G. Thomas, local business agent.

Also, an announcement that the Industrial Rayon Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, had reached an agreement with TWUA on a new contract for an average wage increase of 17 cents an hour, was expected to have some effect on local negotiations.

Direct Dues Collection

Thomas said yesterday that union dues are now being collected at Amcelle Plant gate. He said:

"Local 1874 finds it necessary to commence direct collection of membership dues until such time as the terms of a new contract and the wording of a new check off are agreed upon with the company. No further dues will be checked off by the company. The last deductions made were for June and payments for July and August are being accepted at the union booth between 2 p. m. and 4:15 p. m. daily and at Textile Hall during regular office hours.

The situation arises from a provision of the Taft-Hartley Law which decrees that a union check-off card authorization must be revocable after a period of one year. The previous authorization card was honored by the company for a full 12-month term ending in June.

Cereus Plant Blooms Here

A night-blooming cereus owned by Mrs. A. J. Chorpenning, Sr., Vocke Drive, produced two blooms at 8 o'clock last night, and six more blooms are expected later in the summer, Mrs. Chorpenning said.

This is the third year the plant has had blooms since Mrs. Chorpenning has owned it. She said she was given the plant five years ago by a friend. The plant had not bloomed until 1946, however.

Charter Units Will File Preliminary Reports In Sept.

Letter From Mayor Of Hagerstown Read

The four committees of the Cumberland Charter Commission last night were instructed by motion to furnish preliminary reports at the first September meeting, after a letter from Mayor Richard H. Sweeney, Hagerstown, was read by Secretary John M. Robb.

The members discussed various approaches to drawing up a new charter for Cumberland and indicated that it will be introduced at the January session of the Maryland Legislature. Most of the meeting, however, was devoted to Hagerstown's Mayor Sweeney's letter.

The Hagerstown Mayor said he favors an equalization of wards based on population, with the equalization following as far as practical the state and county voting districts so that one registration would serve for national, state, county and municipal elections.

"I favor among other things," Mayor Sweeney wrote, "at least three councilmen making a majority, and I am for the maximum amount of home rule that is obtainable.

"If the council has a right to pass on the appointments of the Mayor, this naturally makes them to some degree administrative officers, which is not desirable. However, a Mayor may be elected who may be undesirable and this provision in that event may fill a loop-hole such as this. The strong Mayor type of government is, therefore, a debatable question."

Commenting on the Hagerstown municipal government, Mayor Sweeney said the present charter has been in effect for more than 50 years. He explained that the body is made up of a mayor, five councilmen, a board of street commissioners and a board of water commissioners.

Mayor Sweeney said the charter is apparently outmoded and the municipality in need of a new charter. "I feel that if the Mayor and Council are to assume the responsibility of government, they should be free to discharge that responsibility and not be hampered and at times have their hands tied by such boards as aforementioned. They should be at liberty, however, to appoint boards and committees that would be advisory in nature.

The local commission adjourned without setting a definite date for the next meeting.

Dr. Carl N. Everstine, assistant director of Research of the Maryland Legislative Council, attended the meeting as a guest.

Planning Group Recommends City Sewage Study

Is Informed Of Bill Providing Federal Loan

A study of Congressional legislation setting up a water pollution control fund was recommended by members of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission yesterday along with the suggestion that a traffic survey be considered.

The water pollution study recommendation followed reading of a letter from Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore engineers, informing Cumberland that Congress has enacted a bill setting aside $22,500,000 a year for five years as loans to finance municipal sewage treatment.

The bill also provides an additional $1,000,000 per year for five years to be used in grants to help finance engineering costs and preparation of plans and specifications in treatment and construction of sewage plants.

The board secretary was instructed to write a letter to the Mayor and City Council recommending that the municipal body make a further study of the possibilities.

The letter from the engineers stated, "We believe that the new Maryland Pollution Control Commission as well as the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin and State Department of Health will look to Cumberland to initiate action in this respect and it may very well be that orders will be issued to take action toward treatment of sewage from Cumberland."

Discussing a traffic survey, members of the board said such a survey of the city was necessary to permit the municipality to qualify for many federal government grants and termed the survey "vital to future plans of the city."

The traffic survey, according to members, would cost roughly $16,000 with the city required to meet only one-quarter of the expense, the state one-quarter and the federal government one-half.

The board also instructed the secretary to write the Mayor and Council a letter recommending that advantage be taken of the Traffic Survey now while the city would be required to pay only one-fourth of the cost.

Drowning Victim's Body Is Recovered

The body of Frank Shultz, 54, Confluence, Pa., who was drowned Sunday at Youghiogheny Dam, was recovered at 9:22 last night by five boys who were aiding volunteer fire companies from nearby towns in the search.

Ray F. Montague, operator of a concession at the dam, reported Shultz fell overboard while attempting to make a sharp turn in his light outboard motorboat.

Norman E. Staley, Tarenton, Pa., deep-sea diver, worked with the firemen and N. T. Prinkey, who directed him from the dock by telephone until the communications system failed at 5 a. m. yesterday. The workers continued with hand signals on a rope until 8 a. m., when the lines became fouled by heavy weeds.

Prinkey reported last night that Staley was within 10 feet of the body at times, but did not know it. The boys found Shultz's body in about 31 feet of water, he said.

The volunteer fire companies of Addison, Farmington, Uniontown, Brownsville and West Brownsville had dragged the lake, which is 108 feet deep in points, for 10 hours Sunday.

Local Units To Leave By Convoy August 21

Plans are being completed this week for the annual summer training encampment of the 115th Regiment, Maryland National Guard, with 368 men comprising the First Battalion of Western Maryland participating.

Col. Randolph Millholland, battalion commander, said last night the guardsmen will go to Camp Albert C. Ritchie Saturday, August 21, for a 15-day training period.

The troops will move into camp in motor convoy and 16 Army trucks will be sent here next week to augment local equipment to transport the two local companies.

Headquarters Company and Company C of this city, comprising 140 men and officers, Company D, Frostburg, 60 men and officers, Company A, Frederick, 86 men and officers, and Company B, Hagerstown, 82 men and officers, will comprise Col. Millholland's battalion.

Col. Millholland, Capt. John McAlpine, battalion planning and operations officer, and Lt. Lonnie Kyle, battalion supply officer, were in Camp Ritchie Saturday and Sunday. Conferences were held with regimental and other battalion staff officers regarding plans for the summer training period and moving the regiment into camp.

August 27 has been tentatively designated as Governor's Day at which time Governor William Preston Lane, Jr., formerly battalion commander of the Western Maryland Battalion, will review the regiment.

On Sunday, August 29, Maryland Day or Visitors Day will be observed with a special program of activity including a Guard Mount and Regimental Review. Preparations are underway for several thousand visitors.

Col. Millholland said the local units will begin packing equipment this week and indications are the battalion will have close to 100 per cent attendance at the camp. The local units have qualified 13 truck drivers and 15 assistant truck drivers to operate the vehicles to be used in moving to and from Camp Ritchie, the battalion commander said.

Frostburg Jaycees Send Letter Of Apology To Miss Lookabaugh

Oakland Group Sends Their Best Wishes

Miss Juanita Lookabaugh, "Miss Maryland of 1948," acknowledged last night that she had received a letter of apology from the Frostburg Junior Chamber of Commerce, for any injury done her as a result of that organization's published statements about the Miss Maryland Pageant.

The Frostburg Jaycees entry was first runner up, trailing Miss Lookabaugh, the Cumberland entry, by only three points, and representatives of the Frostburg group made a public denunciation of the pageant and its directors through the local press. Since then the organization has issued a statement retracting most of their charges.

Jaycees Get Copy

The letter, dated August 8, to Miss Lookabaugh, a copy of which was sent to the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce, sponsors of the Miss Maryland Pageant, fololws:

Dear Miss Lookabaugh,

Congratulations on your being chosen Miss Maryland. We hope you will be chosen Miss America in September at Atlantic City.

If you feel that we owe you or your family an apology please consider this as such.

In doing what we did in the past few days it was natural that some feelings would be hurt. We are sorry that you were one of those hurt. We feel nothing for you but acclaim and admiration. You were just an innocent bystander or a victim of circumstances.

Anything that may have been published was not aimed at you but was just to illustrate where and how many times the rules as we knew them were broken. We stand corrected on a few minor items but have gained all ultimate goals.

If there is anything further that you desire of our organization please contact us immediately. We all sincerely hope that you have a wonderful time in Atlantic City, and that you will soon forget all the unpleasantness of the past few days.

Yours Very Sincerely,

REV. GEORGE L. WEHLER, President

RAYMOND THOMAS, Secretary

WALTER T. KERR, Treasurer

RAY L. LAYMAN, Director

Oakland Satisfied

The Mountain Top Chamber of Commerce has no intention of boycotting future "Miss Maryland" pageants in the event the programs are held in Cumberland.

House Drops On Three Men

Woodrow Stump, 33, escaped with shoulder abrasions when a house, which he had been helping to raise, fell on him yesterday near Wiley Ford, W. Va.

Bernard Peer, owner of the house on the Schoolhouse Road, and Peer's brother-in-law, Junior Smith, had also been jacking up the residence to put a foundation under it. The jacks slipped letting the structure fall on all three men.

Peer and Smith fell on their faces and were safe because of an eight-inch leeway left by the sills which had been supporting the house. Stump, however, wa scaught under one of the beams. Concrete blocks which had been placed under the house kept its full weight from falling on him.

Peer said that the structure moved four feet from its original site when the jacks collapsed. Nothing in the house was damaged.

Stump was rushed to Memorial Hospital where he was treated and dismissed.

Utility Obstacles To Flood Conduits Are Marked Here

Actual Work Expected To Begin In September

With actual labor on the local flood control project expected to get underway in September, engineers yesterday outlined to Cumberland utility company heads obstacles that must be removed before the pressure conduits can be laid in the city.

Engineers said utility company heads were shown the poles, pipes and wiring connections that must be removed at the four points where the conduits will be laid.

Albert S. Paye, who represented the city, said the contracts have been advertised and bids are expected before September with officials hopeful that work will be underway by the end of September.

City Solicitor Thomas B. Finan also accompanied the group yesterday on the tour of sites which was headed by John M. Wright, Jr., head of the local United States Engineering survey office.

Lawrence Cessna represented the Potomac Edison Company on the tour, Simon K. Carroll represented the Cumberland Water Department, and Ellis Batdorf represented the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company.

Engineers said the removal of the utility obstacles now would prevent delay on the project once work is started in installing the pressure conduits.

They are scheduled to be installed at Franklin Street, Knox Street, Pioneer Alley and Wineow Street.

Jobless Veterans On Increase In Allegany County

Committee Probes For Increased Employment

Voicing their concern over the increase in the number of jobless war veterans in Allegany County and the "apparent policy of indifference here in recent years to encourage new industries to locate in Cumberland and vicinity, members of the Veterans Employment Committee outlined a program of action last night.

Patrick J. Carroll, chairman of the committee and manager of the local office of the Maryland Employment Service here, said that as of August 1 this year the number of employed veterans in the community had dropped by a total of 483. There are now 1,043 unemployed veterans here in addition to 1,189 other registered unemployed and employable persons.

Gradual Decline Noted

Carroll explained surveys completed by his office show a gradual decline in the number of available jobs in this area for those who really want work, and submitted the following figures:

"There were 33 different employers in the county employing a total of 20,665 persons on August 1, 1947. Of this number, 5,253 were veterans.

"On August 1, this year, 33 different employers had 19,469 employes or a total decrease of 1,196. At the same time this year, there were 4,770 veterans employed by these same firms, or a decrease in 12 months of 483 veterans."

An analysis of the figures on veteran unemployment shows, Carroll explained, that 233 of the registered unemployed veterans had no jobs before entering service, 601 had one job, 127 had two jobs and 148 worked at three or more places.

This same record shows that 250 of the jobless GI's had one job since their discharge from service, 158 have had two jobs and 100 have had three or more jobs.

It was also brought out that 112 veterans now unemployed returned to jobs they held prior to military service and for one reason or another quit. Another 105 of those registered were furloughed. There are 321 registered veterans who had no jobs to return to, either because they had not been employed before military service or their jobs no longer exist.

Veterans Want Work

Contrary to some popular misconception, most of these veterans want work, Carroll told the committee. Of the 1,043 registered jobless veterans, 710 are filing claims for compensation under the Service Readjustment Allowance (52-20). Ninety per cent of these, Carroll said, would rather have jobs than unemployment pay. Another 333 jobless veterans are not getting 52-20, Carroll said, and it is easy to understand that these men registered because they want work.

The committee discussed plans programs and attempts of past years in finding work for the city and county jobless. It was the consensus of opinion, however, that Cumberland and adjacent areas have been especially lax in encouraging industries to locate here. Several members of the committee voiced the opinion that there has been an effort made to keep desirable industries out of Cumberland, and specific instances were cited.

Offer Co-operation

It was brought out, too, that a new Industrial Location Committee has been formed and Carroll was authorized, as chairman, to pledge this group the co-operation of veterans' organizations in any program designed to increase jobs here by the establishment of new places of employment. Carroll was also instructed by the committee to offer the Industrial Location Committee the full help, co-operation and coordination of the Veterans Employment Committee in the industry location project.

It was also decided that another meeting of the committee will be held at 8 p. m. August 23 at the Employment office, Union Street, with an invitation extended to several persons who may be interested in the efforts of the group.

Among those present were James J. Kloran, commander of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, VFW; Samuel A. Graham, representing the American Legion Mountain District; Labin Perdew, commander, Washington Chapter, Disabled American Veterans; Harvey Gortner, Grantsville, Legion Post commander there; William Spangler, representing J. Louis Wolford Post No. 1, Amvets; and Edward J. Wegman, of the Unemployment Service.

Holden Reports Progress In Celanese Negotiations

Union Meeting Is Planned Wednesday

Representatives of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, and the Celanese Corporation of America held the first night meeting in present negotiations last night from 8 to 9:30 o'clock and a councilliator afterward reported: "Progress is being made."

However, union officials declined to comment on the two meetings yesterday, the first of which was held in the afternoon, but supposition spread that a break is expected in the contract talks before Wednesday night.

The union officials have scheduled a membership meeting for Wednesday night, and the fact that negotiation committees went into night sessions for the first time in the weeks-old talks and the conciliator's "progress" report were taken as a sign that the company and union may be close to agreement.

Cook Is Present

James A. Holden, the federal conciliator, said talks were resumed yesterday afternoon at 2 p. m. and the first session continued until 5:15 p. m.

The presence of Wesley Cook, assistant synthetic yarn director of TWUA, also added meaning to the night session. Cook's appearance at negotiations yesterday marked the first time he has participated in local negotiations for the anticipated contract since the 1947-1948 agreement expired.

Yesterday's talks were originally scheduled to get underway in the morning but were delayed when Cook did not arrive in the city until late in the morning. Holden said negotiations will continue this morning and are scheduled to start at 10 o'clock.

Besides Cook, union negotiators include James A. Dundon, and James A. Blackwell, national TWUA representatives, Playford Aldridge, president of Local 1874, and John G. Thomas, local business agent.

Also, an announcement that the Industrial Rayon Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, had reached an agreement with TWUA on a new contract for an average wage increase of 17 cents an hour, was expected to have some effect on local negotiations.

Direct Dues Collection

Thomas said yesterday that union dues are now being collected at Amcelle Plant gate. He said:

"Local 1874 finds it necessary to commence direct collection of membership dues until such time as the terms of a new contract and the wording of a new check off are agreed upon with the company. No further dues will be checked off by the company. The last deductions made were for June and payments for July and August are being accepted at the union booth between 2 p. m. and 4:15 p. m. daily and at Textile Hall during regular office hours.

The situation arises from a provision of the Taft-Hartley Law which decrees that a union check-off card authorization must be revocable after a period of one year. The previous authorization card was honored by the company for a full 12-month term ending in June.

Cereus Plant Blooms Here

A night-blooming cereus owned by Mrs. A. J. Chorpenning, Sr., Vocke Drive, produced two blooms at 8 o'clock last night, and six more blooms are expected later in the summer, Mrs. Chorpenning said.

Mrs. Chorpenning said there would probably have been more blooms but for the fact that she was ill for a time and was unable to tend the plant properly.

This is the third year the plant has had blooms since Mrs. Chorpenning has owned it. She said she was given the plant five years ago by a friend. The plant had not bloomed until 1946, however.

Charter Units Will File Preliminary Reports In Sept.

Letter From Mayor Of Hagerstown Read

The four committees of the Cumberland Charter Commission last night were instructed by motion to furnish preliminary reports at the first September meeting, after a letter from Mayor Richard H. Sweeney, Hagerstown, was read by Secretary John M. Robb.

The members discussed various approaches to drawing up a new charter for Cumberland and indicated that it will be introduced at the January session of the Maryland Legislature. Most of the meeting, however, was devoted to Hagerstown's Mayor Sweeney's letter.

The Hagerstown Mayor said he favors an equalization of wards based on population, with the equalization following as far as practical the state and county voting districts so that one registration would serve for national, state, county and municipal elections.

"I favor among other things," Mayor Sweeney wrote, "at least three councilmen making a majority, and I am for the maximum amount of home rule that is obtainable.

"If the council has a right to pass on the appointments of the Mayor, this naturally makes them to some degree administrative officers, which is not desirable. However, a Mayor may be elected who may be undesirable and this provision in that event may fill a loop-hole such as this. The strong Mayor type of government is, therefore, a debatable question."

Commenting on the Hagerstown municipal government, Mayor Sweeney said the present charter has been in effect for more than 50 years. He explained that the body is made up of a mayor, five councilmen, a board of street commissioners and a board of water commissioners.

Mayor Sweeney said the charter is apparently outmoded and the municipality in need of a new charter. "I feel that if the Mayor and Council are to assume the responsibility of government, they should be free to discharge that responsibility and not be hampered and at times have their hands tied by such boards as aforementioned. They should be at liberty, however, to appoint boards and committees that would be advisory in nature.

The local commission adjourned without setting a definite date for the next meeting.

Dr. Carl N. Everstine, assistant director of Research of the Maryland Legislative Council, attended the meeting as a guest.

Is Informed Of Bill Providing Federal Loan

A study of Congressional legislation setting up a water pollution control fund was recommended by members of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission yesterday along with the suggestion that a traffic survey be considered.

The water pollution study recommendation followed reading of a letter from Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore engineers, informing Cumberland that Congress has enacted a bill setting aside $22,500,000 a year for five years as loans to finance municipal sewage treatment.

The bill also provides an additional $1,000,000 per year for five years to be used in grants to help finance engineering costs and preparation of plans and specifications in treatment and construction of sewage plants.

The board secretary was instructed to write a letter to the Mayor and City Council recommending that the municipal body make a further study of the possibilities.

The letter from the engineers stated, "We believe that the new Maryland Pollution Control Commission as well as the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin and State Department of Health will look to Cumberland to initiate action in this respect and it may very well be that orders will be issued to take action toward treatment of sewage from Cumberland."

Discussing a traffic survey, members of the board said such a survey of the city was necessary to permit the municipality to qualify for many federal government grants and termed the survey "vital to future plans of the city."

The traffic survey, according to members, would cost roughly $16,000 with the city required to meet only one-quarter of the expense, the state one-quarter and the federal government one-half.

Mayor Post said the Council had not acted favorably to the proposal.

The board also instructed the secretary to write the Mayor and Council a letter recommending that advantage be taken of the Traffic Survey now while the city would be required to pay only one-fourth of the cost.

Drowning Victim's Body Is Recovered

The body of Frank Shultz, 54, Confluence, Pa., who was drowned Sunday at Youghiogheny Dam, was recovered at 9:22 last night by five boys who were aiding volunteer fire companies from nearby towns in the search.

Ray F. Montague, operator of a concession at the dam, reported Shultz fell overboard while attempting to make a sharp turn in his light outboard motorboat.

Norman E. Staley, Tarenton, Pa., deep-sea diver, worked with the firemen and N. T. Prinkey, who directed him from the dock by telephone until the communications system failed at 5 a. m. yesterday. The workers continued with hand signals on a rope until 8 a. m., when the lines became fouled by heavy weeds.

Prinkey reported last night that Staley was within 10 feet of the body at times, but did not know it. The boys found Shultz's body in about 31 feet of water, he said.

The volunteer fire companies of Addison, Farmington, Uniontown, Brownsville and West Brownsville had dragged the lake, which is 108 feet deep in points, for 10 hours Sunday.

Frostburg Jaycees Send Letter Of Apology To Miss Lookabaugh

Oakland Group Sends Their Best Wishes

Miss Juanita Lookabaugh, "Miss Maryland of 1948," acknowledged last night that she had received a letter of apology from the Frostburg Junior Chamber of Commerce, for any injury done her as a result of that organization's published statements about the Miss Maryland Pageant.

The Frostburg Jaycees entry was first runner up, trailing Miss Lookabaugh, the Cumberland entry, by only three points, and representatives of the Frostburg group made a public denunciation of the pageant and its directors through the local press. Since then the organization has issued a statement retracting most of their charges.

Jaycees Get Copy

The letter, dated August 8, to Miss Lookabaugh, a copy of which was sent to the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce, sponsors of the Miss Maryland Pageant, fololws:

Dear Miss Lookabaugh,

Congratulations on your being chosen Miss Maryland. We hope you will be chosen Miss America in September at Atlantic City.

If you feel that we owe you or your family an apology please consider this as such.

In doing what we did in the past few days it was natural that some feelings would be hurt. We are sorry that you were one of those hurt. We feel nothing for you but acclaim and admiration. You were just an innocent bystander or a victim of circumstances.

Anything that may have been published was not aimed at you but was just to illustrate where and how many times the rules as we knew them were broken. We stand corrected on a few minor items but have gained all ultimate goals.

If there is anything further that you desire of our organization please contact us immediately. We all sincerely hope that you have a wonderful time in Atlantic City, and that you will soon forget all the unpleasantness of the past few days.

Yours Very Sincerely,

REV. GEORGE L. WEHLER, President

WALTER T. KERR, Treasurer

RAY L. LAYMAN, Director

House Drops On Three Men

Woodrow Stump, 33, escaped with shoulder abrasions when a house, which he had been helping to raise, fell on him yesterday near Wiley Ford, W. Va.

Bernard Peer, owner of the house on the Schoolhouse Road, and Peer's brother-in-law, Junior Smith, had also been jacking up the residence to put a foundation under it. The jacks slipped letting the structure fall on all three men.

Peer and Smith fell on their faces and were safe because of an eight-inch leeway left by the sills which had been supporting the house. Stump, however, wa scaught under one of the beams. Concrete blocks which had been placed under the house kept its full weight from falling on him.

Peer said that the structure moved four feet from its original site when the jacks collapsed. Nothing in the house was damaged.

Stump was rushed to Memorial Hospital where he was treated and dismissed.

Actual Work Expected To Begin In September

With actual labor on the local flood control project expected to get underway in September, engineers yesterday outlined to Cumberland utility company heads obstacles that must be removed before the pressure conduits can be laid in the city.

Engineers said utility company heads were shown the poles, pipes and wiring connections that must be removed at the four points where the conduits will be laid.

Albert S. Paye, who represented the city, said the contracts have been advertised and bids are expected before September with officials hopeful that work will be underway by the end of September.

City Solicitor Thomas B. Finan also accompanied the group yesterday on the tour of sites which was headed by John M. Wright, Jr., head of the local United States Engineering survey office.

Lawrence Cessna represented the Potomac Edison Company on the tour, Simon K. Carroll represented the Cumberland Water Department, and Ellis Batdorf represented the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company.

Committee Probes For Increased Employment

Voicing their concern over the increase in the number of jobless war veterans in Allegany County and the "apparent policy of indifference here in recent years to encourage new industries to locate in Cumberland and vicinity, members of the Veterans Employment Committee outlined a program of action last night.

Patrick J. Carroll, chairman of the committee and manager of the local office of the Maryland Employment Service here, said that as of August 1 this year the number of employed veterans in the community had dropped by a total of 483. There are now 1,043 unemployed veterans here in addition to 1,189 other registered unemployed and employable persons.

Gradual Decline Noted

Carroll explained surveys completed by his office show a gradual decline in the number of available jobs in this area for those who really want work, and submitted the following figures:

"There were 33 different employers in the county employing a total of 20,665 persons on August 1, 1947. Of this number, 5,253 were veterans.

"On August 1, this year, 33 different employers had 19,469 employes or a total decrease of 1,196. At the same time this year, there were 4,770 veterans employed by these same firms, or a decrease in 12 months of 483 veterans."

An analysis of the figures on veteran unemployment shows, Carroll explained, that 233 of the registered unemployed veterans had no jobs before entering service, 601 had one job, 127 had two jobs and 148 worked at three or more places.

This same record shows that 250 of the jobless GI's had one job since their discharge from service, 158 have had two jobs and 100 have had three or more jobs.

It was also brought out that 112 veterans now unemployed returned to jobs they held prior to military service and for one reason or another quit. Another 105 of those registered were furloughed. There are 321 registered veterans who had no jobs to return to, either because they had not been employed before military service or their jobs no longer exist.

Veterans Want Work

Contrary to some popular misconception, most of these veterans want work, Carroll told the committee. Of the 1,043 registered jobless veterans, 710 are filing claims for compensation under the Service Readjustment Allowance (52-20). Ninety per cent of these, Carroll said, would rather have jobs than unemployment pay. Another 333 jobless veterans are not getting 52-20, Carroll said, and it is easy to understand that these men registered because they want work.

The committee discussed plans, programs and attempts of past years in finding work for the city and county jobless. It was the consensus of opinion, however, that Cumberland and adjacent areas have been especially lax in encouraging industries to locate here. Several members of the committee voiced the opinion that there has been an effort made to keep desirable industries out of Cumberland, and specific instances were cited.

Offer Co-operation

It was brought out, too, that a new Industrial Location Committee has been formed and Carroll was authorized, as chairman, to pledge this group the co-operation of veterans' organizations in any program designed to increase jobs here by the establishment of new places of employment. Carroll was also instructed by the committee to offer the Industrial Location Committee the full help, co-operation and coordination of the Veterans Employment Committee in the industry location project.

It was also decided that another meeting of the committee will be held at 8 p. m. August 23 at the Employment office, Union Street, with an invitation extended to several persons who may be interested in the efforts of the group.

Among those present were James J. Kloran, commander of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, VFW; Samuel A. Graham, representing the American Legion Mountain District; Labin Perdew, commander, Washington Chapter, Disabled American Veterans; Harvey Gortner, Grantsville, Legion Post commander there; William Spangler, representing J. Louis Wolford Post No. 1, Amvets; and Edward J. Wegman, of the Unemployment Service.
